ANNUAL 4 DAY EVENT STARTS WELL

EXHIBITS SEEN THIS YEAR ARE HIGH QUALITY

Gates Opened at 10 O'Clock This Morning—Judges Start Their Task—Fair Is "Ready" In Every Sense and Is Largest in Variety of Entertainment.

"Everything up and ready to go." This was the final dictum of Henry B. Watkins, secretary of the Danville Fair Association made shortly before ten o'clock this morning when, figuratively speaking, the gates of the enclosure swung upon heralding the opening of the annual event. With the largest number of exhibitors ever recorded, and more entertainment features and novelties Danville's annual agricultural event has ever seen, the four day run began this morning with clear weather and with the promise of excellent patronage.

A noteworthy feature of the Fair this year was its absolute preparedness. Nine o'clock this morning found all of the exhibition halls, the concessions, booths, riding devices, side-shows and the hundred and one-side features of the Fair actually ready. There was no frantic effort to get ready, with mehanics in the last throes of setting up the Ferris Wheel. The Fair this year was ready in ample time for the opening.

Judges began their task of comparing exhibits and making awards at nine o'clock. The tobacco exhibit, which is unusually large and bearing splendid samples of the section's staple crop was being judged late this morning, picked tobacconists starting the task at eleven o'clock. The awards would not be completed, it was said until this afternoon.

All told there are seven hundred exhibitors in the three halls many of them with more than one exhibit. This is said to establish a record for any Danville Fair.

Late this morning the grounds had more than their usual quota of Fair sight-seers than usual and by three o'clock this evening when Vezett's Schoolfield Band herald the first performance of the free attractions, it is expected that a good crowd will be on hand. The free acts will be repeated at eight o'clock and the fireworks will begin at about nine o'clock. The investment made by the Fair Association in pyrotechnics this year is larger than that made last year and this display is expected to be proportionately better.

This is known as "Opening Day." Tomorrow will be "Carolina Day" when the attendance of men, women and children from across the state line is expected to be heavy. The Fair is expected to strike its full stride tomorrow afternoon. Thursday's is "Danville Day."

The baby show is set for eleven o'clock Friday morning. Entries do not have to be listed. Fathers and mothers with their prize winners should have their babies in the grand stand at eleven o'clock when the judges will begin the difficult and absorbing task of determining if Jim Jones 'dimple cherub is to win the coveted blue ribbon or if Mrs. Smith's budding prima dona shall be crowned with the laurels. There will be prizes for boy babies and girl babies.

One of the features of the Agricultural Building this year is the miniature model farm prepared by Gordon Elcan, demonstration agent for Pittsylvania. This is, roughly speaking, twelve by fifteen feet, and shows a number of crops actually growing. In order to secure the desired effect, Mr. Elcan obtained the privilege of preparing the farm six weeks ago at which time he sowed the seed which is now showing a number of small but healthy looking crops. There is a field of tobacco actually growing, a plat of grass and others of wheat, mixed hay, clover and peas. The exhibit is quite novel and worth studying closely.

As usual, there are a number of individual farm exhibits contained in attractively-arranged booths in that building. The clubs of the county high schools also have taken space this year and Spring Garden, Climax, Renan, Callands, Whitmell, Swansonville, Dan River and Brosville schools have well-arranged booths showing farm products and exhibits of the household arts. The central portion of the exhibition hall is taken up with legumes and grasses which are of splendid quality this year. The far end of the hall is take nup with the Patrick and Henry county apple exhibits.

The apples this year are as fine in quality as any raised before and the harvest is notable not only for the abundance of the yield but its quality. A. W. Griggs has an unusually handsome assortment of apples grown on his large orchard three miles beyond Stuart. Mr. Griggs forgerly lived in Danville and was acent for the Danville and Western Railway. He foresaw, however, that some day he might desire to make a change and more than ten years ago he bought some forest land on the mountain side, cleared it and set out year-old trees which he nurtured for ten years before they came into bearing. Then, he retired from the railway business and took up apple-growing, having, he says, been moderately successful at it. Apple growers, like tobacco farmers, have their elementary foes. With the tobacco grower it is the hail which sets at nought his years labor. With the orchardist it is the frost which overnight may ruin his prospects and when it comes, as it frequently does, it means the loss of a year for orchard lands can not be used for other crops. In Patrick it is impossible to resort to the smudge pot to ward off frost as is done in the Valley. The orchardists hope, however, some day to perfect a scientific atmospheric drainage system which will enable them to cope with the annual late Spring menace.

The Rangely Orchard Company, one of the largest in Patrick, has apples on exhibit, and C. H. Bradshaw, of Preston, Henry county, who for the past nine years has had charge of the apple end of the building, is here again this year and is in large measure responsible for the attractive setting of the apple exhibit. SEN. BRANDEGEE FOUND DEAD IN HIS APARTMENT

Circumstances Indicate Suicide by Leader Republican Politics

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Senator Frank Brandegee, of Connecticut, prominent for years among the Republican leaders of Congress, committed suicide at his home here today.

Worried and distracted, his friends said, over financial difficulties, he went to an unused bathroom on the third floor of his house and, just before dawn, took his own life by inhaling gas.

He left in his bedroom below a note to his chauffeur, telling him where the body would be found. He was a bachelor and for years had lived alone.

The note ascribed no motive. A verdict of suicide was returned by the coroner after he and the police had made a complete investigation.

Penciled in an uncertain hand on Senate stationery, the senator's last message said:

"October 13, 1924.

"Dear George: I enclose $100 for you and $100 for Emma and Rufus.

"I am up in the bathroom on the top floor near 17th street. The top floor. The floor above the one I sleep on.

"If you or Lundy come up there beware of the gas.

"Goodbye.

"Frank B. Brandegee."

Pinned to the note were two $100 bills. Emma and Rufus referred to by the senator are Emma and Rufus Kenney, negroes, servants of Mr. Brandegee. The chauffeur is George Jones.

The two sentences in the note, "the top floor. The floor above the one I sleep on," were written in red crayon, as though inserted as an afterthought.

The senator was last seen alive by Jones and W. D. Lundy, his secretary, yesterday morning. At that time he went for a ride with Jones about the city. Jones said he seemed then to be in the best of spirits and health, remarking time and again during the ride about how beautiful a day it was.

He was heard about the house last night by the servants but his bed had been untouched except for the note laying on it.

Lundy and Jones instituted a search upon their arrival at the home shortly after 9 o'clock this morning. The note was found when they went to his bedroom. In his dying moments the sixty-year-old senator had crumpled a bath rug beneath his head for a pillow. The end of a small rubber tube, attached to an open gas jet still was in his hand.

Senator Brandege had no living immediate relatives. Mr. Lundy took charge of the funeral plans and announced that the burial probably would be in New London Conn., Mr. Brandegee's birth place and home.

The residence occupied here by Senator Brandegee had been owned by him for some time. It is a rather spacious dwelling close to the down town section and had been the scene of many important conferences among the leaders of the Senate.

Although he once was a comparatively rich man, his friends said today that he had suffered heavy losses in recent years. He was a lawyer by profession but for some time has been heavily interested real estate.

(By The Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Senator Frank B. Brandegee, of Connecticut, long a leader in national Republican politics, was found dead in his home here early today.

The cause of Senator Brandegee's death could not be immediately ascertained. Police reports said a gas jet was found turned on in his home.

Senator Brandegee lived alone in an apartment house on Rhode Island avenue. He recently moved from his home on K steet, which for a long time had

"DEAR BEN" LETTERS ARE STOLEN

FORD WITHDRAWS OFFER

MUSCLE SHOALS BID IS CALLED OFF SUDDENLY

Washington Considers Effect on Political Situation and Development of Property.

(By The Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Official Washington today was considering what effect the Collier's Weekly announcement of the withdrawal of Henry Ford from the bidding for Muscle Shoals would have on the political situation and the development of gigantic government properties.

Apparently, the Detroit manufacturer, after occupying the center of the stage in a heated controversy that consumed the attention of Congress for two years, voluntarily has withdrawn and announced his intentions through the magazine. As far as can be learned, the White House, War departments and others dealing directly with Muscle Shoals have received no official information of the withdrawal.

Washington was equally interested in Ford's reported advocacy of hte administration's proposal to create an impartial commission to study the Muscle Shoals question and submitted recommendations to Congress, and also in his quoted statement that he believed the army engineers could carry the work forward if unhampered. During the committee hearing the Ford supporters opposed both of these propposals and charged they were merely measures to thwart the Ford bid.

If Ford actually has retired from the bidding, members of Congress favoring his bid probably will establish affiliations with other groups before December, when the Muscle Shoals issuee will come up on the Senate calendar as the first order of business.

Officials said no steps would be taken until it was learned officially that Ford definitely had withdrawn from Muscle Shoals.

TOWN TOPICS

No radio connection was established by Danville fans with the ZR-3 so far as could be ascertained this morning. W. T. Gravely was in touch with the American Radio League headquarters at Hartford, Conn., last night on his set and he worked with that station for an hour trying to secure the wave length of the air vessel. He failed, however, to learn it and League officials said that the zeppelin's wave length has never been given out. The effort to comb the air for the air leviathan will be continued tonight by which time she may be heard communicating with shore stations. The ZR-3 was reported this afternoon to be in communication with Lakehurst from her position over the Atlantic.

The question of whether or not quarantine laws can be evaded is to be subjected to a legal test at three o'clock this afternoon when Magistrate C. K. Carter will hear evidence in a charge brought against Mrs. Silverman. The city health officer charges, it is understood, that a diphtheria quarantine was violated on successive occasions recently. The mother, it is reliably learned was instructed by her physician to keep the ailing child in the sunlight as much as possible. The case is the first of its kind heard here for several years, it is said, and is viewed as an important one by the local health authorities.

The Ford coupe which recently was stolen from Miss Helen Cook from its parked position on Main street, has been recovered by the police who are still investigating the theft. The car was driven behind the Leeland hotel where it remained for several weeks befor any particular attention was paid to it. It has now been fully identified.

Danville High Is Scrimmaging For Clash Here Friday

Danville high school is priming this week to shake off memories of a 6-6 tie game with Altavista last year. Altavista comes to Stonewall Jackson park Friday.

Outside of some sore legs, the local eleven is in excellent shape for the Friday tilt. "Everyone is pretty well physically," Athletic Director Wilson said this afternoon.

There will be a hot scrimmage tomorrow afternoon. Today regular practice will be indulged in. Light signal practice was gone through yesterday.

...through defeated Friday at Leaksville, followers of the local team who saw the game, believe Danville played a better game even if a 7-6 defeat was administered. The local squad in the first quarter had the ball on her opponent's one yard line but failed to score a touchdown in three downs. Quarterback Davis handled the ball nervously, an observer said, and the chance to score was lost.

25 MILLION VOTERS STAYED AWAY FROM POLLS IN 1920

In the 1920 presidential election, over 25 million American citizens who were eligible to vote failed to cast their ballots

The people who did vote totaled 26,713,832. Their votes were divided among the various presidential candidates.

This was the situation. For every 100 votes cast there were 96 stay-at-homes or absentees—the total stay-at-home vote reaching the vast aggregate of 20,705,063.

That brought the nation very close to government by minority. Unless the people awaken to their duty of citizenship, less than half of our citizens will vote this fall.

Then we will have government by minority.

In an effort to awaken the public to its duty, The Bee, working in cooperation with Newspaper Enterprise Association, of which this paper is a member, has joined in a nation-wide "Get-Out-the-Vote" campaign.

Nonpartisan Effort.

This campaign, which will be strictly nonpartisan, has been endorsed by the three presidential candidates, scores of prominent citizens and patriotic organizations.

The vast army of non-voters can elect or defeat any candidate—if the vote can be polled. If ten per cent. of the stay-at-homes in "rock-ribbed" states were colonized in "doubtful states" they would decide any close national contest.

The stay-at-home total of over twenty-five million is arrived at after deducting 8,467,625 disqualified citizens of 21 years and over, including about 6,200,000 alien or unnaturalized foreign borns and over two million illiterate citizens, disfranchised under election laws of 12 southern states.

Kentucky has the least stay-at-home voters. There were only 24 absentees for each 100 votes registered at the polls at the last general election. The second best record was in Delaware, where 33 remained away for every 100 who voted. Indiana was third with only 35 stay-at-homes.

Make Best Showing.

Twelve states of the upper Mississippi Valley, known as the middle west, make by all odds the best showing for any geographic section Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin show 65 stay-at-homes per 100 votes, while three middle Atlantic states—New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania—had 94 absentees for the same number of votes.

But the best showing is made by Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, North and South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas—59 stay-at-homes compared with 82 per 100 votes in New England.

Pennsylvania has the worst showing of any large state, casting 1,851,248 votes for president in 1920, while 2,479,100 voters failed to reach the polls. For every 100 persons who did vote, there were 133 who did not. A similar condition prevails in Vermont, classed as a "rock-ribbed Republican" state, which stands second to Pennsylvania in the percentage of the stay-at-homes—113 for 100 votes. This is the same percentage as that of Arizona, where vast distances and a large transient cowboy and Mexican element affect voting efficiency.

Laws Are Hurtful.

While apathy of the voters is directly responsible for this neglect of citizenship duties, election laws also contribute greatly to the stay-at-home vote.

Most of the states have recently tried to overcome the loss of absentee votes by enacting absentee voting laws. But few of these laws are efficient in reaching the result desired, for the simple reason that the absentees are required to register in person in order to vote by mail.

It may be as difficult for the absentee to go to his home precinct to register as to go there and vote. As a consequence, at least 75 per cent. of the value of the absentee voting law is nullified by stringent registration laws.

ZR-3 WOULD COVER MAIN FROM UNION ALMOST TO 'Y'

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.— Here is how the ZR-3 and the navy dirigible Shenandoah, now on the Pacific Coast, compare:

Shenandoah		ZR-3
680 feet	Length	656 feet
78.78 feet	Diameter	80.65 feet
93.18 feet	Height Over All	101.63 ft.
77,850 lbs.	Weight Empty	90,00 lbs.
2,148,000 cu. ft.	Gas. Cap'y	2,472,00 cu. ft.
Helium	Buoyant Gas	Hydrogen
20	Number of Gas Cells	14
	Motors
5 300 H. P. Packards		5 400-H P Maybachs
Approximate Cruising Speed
60 miles hour.		80 miles hour

Widespread interest is evinced in Danville over the journey of the ZR-3 to Lake Hurst, N. J., from Friedrichshaven, Germany in view of the recent passage over Danville of the Shenandoah. The foregoing dimensions indicate the comparative sizes of the two ships which wil form part of the naval defense of the nation.

When the Shenandoah passed over Danville there were numerous calls for its length. As given above, it is seen that the Shenandoah is slightly longer to the airship now crossing the Atlantic though the new vessel is slouter in girth. A measurement made of a city real estate map shows that the Shenandoah would extend from the police traffic box at the corner of the Hotel Burton to the lower corner of the Y M C A if she were brought down to earth, this distance being exactly 680 feet by measurement. The ZR 3 would be a distance up Main Sreet from the Union Street corner to the upper corner of the Municipal Building.

GRETNA MAN IS TRYING TO PIN BLAME ON SLEMP

Ben R. Powell Admits He Has No More Missives and Relates Alleged Harlan, Kentucky Incident.

(Special to The Bee.)

GRETNA, Va., Oct. 14.—Roperts current for some time that Ben R. Powell, recipient of the now famous "Dear Ben" letters is holding a trump card to play against President Coolidge and his secretary, C. Bascom Slemp, resulted today in personal enquiries being directed to the one-time dispenser of federal patronage in the Fifth district of Virginia.

If Republicans are quivering in their shoes over what Mr. Powell might release in the way of an anti-Republican barrage, they have no reason for alarm for Mr. Powell admitted this morning that the final salvo he anticipated firing has been ruined. Vital letters have been stolen from him, he says.

The enquiries were made largely on the strength of the reported utterance of Senator LaFollette, Progressive Candidate, who in a speech in the Middle West indicated that the holder of the "Dear Ben" letters had other literature. This seems to have been true at one time but it is not the case now and unless Mr. Powell is able to secure the letters he claims were stolen from the suit-case of a friend at Harlan, Kentucky, last July.

Mr. Powell is a cautious man and does not commit himself readily. In the course of his interview this morning, however, he revealed the circumstances which, he says, surrounds the disappearance of many of the originals of the 'Dear Ben' letters also several received from Bascom Slemp and Lewis P. Summers of the Ninth district most of which have never been published but which, according to Mr. Powell, would have offered food for thought a swell as ammunition for the forces of democracy.

It seems to have happened in this way: G. I. Rader of Harlan, Kentucky, secured from Mr. Powell the original letters including those already published and contained in the Congressional Record as well as the unpublished missives. Mr. Rader was to confer with an attorney whose name Mr. Powell is not disposed to give now and Rader with his suitcase was entertained at a private residence in Harlan at which time the suitcase was rifled while it was in his bedrom while Mr. Rader was dining in another room of the house. In any event, Powell claims, a vast store of information bearing on patronage matters in the Ninth district and certain alleged commitments on the part of Slemp were removed while the already published 'Dear Ben' letters were left in the suitcase. This happened at the end of July. Some of the letters Powell says, had a bearing on an alleged effort made by Slemp to secure from Powell a statement repudiating certain allegations contained in previous letters. Powell states that some of the now missing letters bore on the immediate result of the publication of the political letters as well as the Teapot Dome scandal. Mr. Powell this morning, asserted that he has information that the letters were extracted from the suitcase by a woman. He claims to have information that she received a fifty dollar bill for her pains. Mr. Powell also said that in his own mind he connected Mr. Slemp with the letter incident though he fails to cite his evidence if he has any to substantiate this theory.

Asked if he contemplated any action, Mr. Powell stated that he is not yet prepared to state definitely. He has been told that th eletters have been destroyed and that there is small hope of being able to retrieve them. Apparently the evidence he has bearing on the alleged theft is slight and the only definite fact discernible, is that the letters were in Mr. Rader's possession and that they were removed during his stay at the house in Harlan.

Powell's immediate effort is to sift as far as possible the alleged theft to its source, and if he is able to sustain his theories in the matter with evidence he promises to give it to the world.

ZR-3 FOLLOWING DIRECT COURSE TO ITS HANGAR

Giant Dirigible Switches From Southerly Course and Steers a Bee-Line For Lakehurst—Reports All Is Well.

(By The Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Oct 14.—Overcoming a potential weather handicap which threatened to delay her trans-Atlantic passage, the dirigible ZR-3 voyaging from Friedrichhaven to Lakehurst was speeding along the ocean air line toward the New Jersey coast at noon today at the rate of 75 miles an hour. At that time she was approximately 1,300 miles from her destination. Maintenance of the same speed would bring her to Lakehurst early tomorrow.

Before dawn today the messages from the big Zeppelin-built craft indicated she was ploughing along toward the North American continent at approximately 65 miles an hour. At 8 a. m. eastern standard time, however, she apparently was encountering weather troubles in the shape of a strong southwest wind which was holding her up seriously the site of her progress being dropped to no more than 25 miles an hour.

Within a brief however the giant dirigible seems to have shaken off the blow. She had worked her slightly to the north of her former position.

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Apparently having switched from a previously planned southern route by way of Bermuda, the giant airship ZR-3 today was steering a bee-line course across the Atlantic from the Azores Islands to LakeHurst, N. J., in its flight from Friedrichshafen, Germany.

Word that the dirigible was following a direct course to its hangar at Lakehurst was received by the Navy Department here early today in a delayed message from Captain George W. Steele, American naval officer on board. The message, sent after the air-cruiser had passed over the Azores yesterday afternoon, said she was then running with only three of her six engines to save fuel and was averaging 48 knots speed.

Officials at the department estimated that if the favorable flying conditions forecast for the next twenty-four hours continues and all goes well aboard the ship she should reach Lakehurst sometime between six and eleven o'clock tomorrow morning.

It was presumed at the department that a decision to steer a direct course from the Azores was reached as a result of a favorable weather prospect for the more northerly passage.

The message from Captain Steel, and another sent apparently shortly after the Azores were sighted, were relayed to the department through the cruiser Detroit, one of the three naval vessels stationed in the Atlantic to assist the flight by meteorologic observations, and the navy yard at Boston. The department was still endeavoring early today to get into direct communication with the dirigible through its stations at Annapolis and Arlington and was expecting momentarily to "talk" with her. At six a. m. it was estimated that she was between 1260 and 1300 miles out from New York.

The first direct message from the ... reaching this side of the Atlantic was picked up last night by the Chatham, Mass., station of the radio corporation of America, in which the dirigible was reporting to Hamburg, Germany that all was well on board. Later the naval station at Lakehurst heard the airship signalling the same ... to the cruiser Milwaukee Submarine ... more or less fragmen-

IN New York

NEW YORK Oct 13—Chinatown has lost its color, even in war The only difference between the illy-handed lazy killer of Chinatown and his neighbor of the Bowery is in the slant of his eyes

In every other particular the killers in the deadly warfare now being waged between the Hip Sing and On Leong tongs are like the typical cake-eating gunman of America

Gone are the hatchetmen Gone are the Chinese of another generation who made Mott, Pell and Dover streets run red with blood Gone are the long-queued battlers who stood toe to toe in the underground tunnels and fought with steel until one was dead

Leaders of the tongs no longer marshaled their forces for combat They telegraph to Philadelphia, Chicago or Cleveland for gunmen They designate the man want killed and pay the killer $200 or less

These gunmen are chinese youths whose ages run from 16 to 20 They wear snappy overcoats yellow caps patent leather shoes bell-bottomed pants and plastered hair a la Valentino

Not one of them would do an honest day's toil They are the lazy sons of industrious fathers Like the second generations of Jewish, Italian, German and Russian immigrants, these Chinese youths have been spoiled by indulgent parents who never knew anything but ambition and work when they came over here

The Chinese gunman is not an expert shot

They shoot like girls' says Detective Arthur Lavery "They always use automatics They hold them out at the side their arms stiff, close their eyes and pull the trigger They move the gun in an arch and thus get a sweeping fire depending on luck to get their man

Lavery knows all about that Tom Fong shot at Lavery that way the other day emptying his pistol but failing to hit Lavery Lavery shot Fong through the lung with one shot

In one skirmish 30 shots were fired from behind drawn curtains Windows were broken, but nobody was shot

Expert revolver shots have been assigned to Chinatown by the police to stop inexpert Chinese pistol users

And white sightseers have been temporarily barred from the district

GAR ISLAND Tex Oct 14—They are on their honor now

The guards and hounds are gone The bars are down The doors stand open all the time

One hundred and fifty convicts, here on Texas first honor farm are "on their own' today

And knowing what the old prison hell was like they are willingly working blisters on their hands to keep from going back.

Texas in the past has borne the unsavory reputation of having one of the most brutal penal systems in the country

Beating of "refractory prisoners was permitted by the prison board

Discharged convicts accuse the guards of "pickling leather straps in oil then rubbing them in sharp sand before using them on the prisoners bare backs

Men have sneaked out bloody undergarments and filed affidavits to support these charges

Echoes of these charges have come from a dozen prison camps scattered over east and southeast Texas The prison board always has denied them

But now there are fewer 'refractory' prisoners Every man is trying to get a berth on the honor farm

It was a dramatic sight the morning Governor Pat Nef unlocked the barred door of the barracks here and threw away the key as the crowd assembled on the banks of the Brazos River clapped and hurrahed

As each man filed out in the sunlight the governor shook hands with him and spoke a word of encouragement

Mrs I E King of San Antonio chairman of the prison advisory board to whom the new plan is largely due stood by the governor

Then the eight prison guards, mounted and armed, booted and spurred and perhaps a bit contemptuous of this new idea rode up Came then the blood-curdling bay of the bloodhounds and the pack in leash tugged up

The executive turned to the guards "Men' he told them, "you are no longer needed here'

The governor was given a gold fountain pen So was 'Mother' King The men had bought them with their hoarded coins

Robert Miller, an overseas veteran nearing the end of a six-year sentence, made the presentation

'We hope you will wear out this pen signing pardons for the convicts of Texas," he said

Neff has been known as the anti pardon governor His predecessor had leaned so far the other way as to be criticized for freeing too many men It is not his custom to make promises or predictions.

But he assured the men that. "If I can, I shall make this honor farm the approach to pardon'

The governor grinned delightedly when an old negro prisoner sang a song of his own invention to the strumming of his guitar He had been in prison since 1893

The superintendent has not had time to take down the grating of the barracks windows. But the honor prisoners grin and say "We left it there to keep the burglars out"

So far the experiment has been a success Work has been done faster and more thoroughly than ever before according to Captain Shannon superintendent, W C McCleary and J R Joyner, overseers.

REV. E. A. HALL MAY NOT COME BACK TO GRACE

This Only Likely Change in Methodist Pastors Likely In Danville Churches

The hosts of Methodism were today converging on Norfolk where the annual Virginia conference opens tomorrow morning for sessions which will last fully one week. Several members of the Danville delegation left during the course of yesterday evening and last night. A majority of them are leaving today in their cars in order to enjoy the overland journey to the coast. James T Catlin, a prominent figure in state Methodism left in his car, yesterday having Frank Talbott as his companion. Rev. G. W. M. Taylor is also going in his car and is carrying delegates with him. Dr. Samuel T. Senter is leaving Danville tonight. He is to preach the opening sermon at the conference tomorrow night.

Enquiry made a prominent Methodist last night before he left regarding Danville's chances to win the 1925 conference revealed that there is scant chance of this unless local organizations can impress on the conference as a whole that Danville has adequate hotel accommodation. He said that the belief prevails that with about four hundred ministerial and lay delegates and the usual number of Methodists who never miss the annual rally, that this city is not equipped for the delegation. The last time Danville was host to the conference was when the old method of housing the delegates in the homes was in vogue. During the war the practise was abandoned and the conference each year now sets aside what is known as the entertainment fund to pay the hotel bills for the delegates. This is viewed as a preferable method though its lacks the intimacy of personal touch which domiciling in the private home gave the conference.

Reports that Rev. Loyd Williams, of Newport News, will probably be assigned to Danville District as presiding elder is viewed by Methodists here thoroughly familiar with conference procedure as mere "kitchen cabinet stuff." They say nobody can foretell what will happen but in this specific instance it can be stated rather definitely that Rev. Mr. Williams will not come to Danville. The Bee's informant was not prepared to say why, but he stated that the chances were that Rev. Stonewall Jackson Battin wil be returned for his fourth year. Rev. Mr. Battin has made an excellent impression in the district and it is said that his report to be submitted to the conference will prove this.

The only possible change in pastorships in Danville is at Grace Methodist church of which Rev. E. A. Hall has been pastor for the past two years coming here from Florida. The Bee's informant stated that "something had arisen which foreshadowed a change. Enquiry made of a leading member of that congregation this morning revealed that the congregation this year has not followed the usual course in adopting a resolution asking for his return. At the same time Bishop Warren Candler may see fit to return Rev. Mr. Hall who is described as being popular with a majority of his church people. The church will make a good financial report.

The appointments will begin to formulate probably next Tuesday afternoon. They will be read out just before adjournment on Wednesday night.

A letter received here from Rev. J. Callaway Robertson new pastor at Petersburg reveals that although he was named to preach the conference sermon a year ago the agreement was reached then that the alternate Rev. S. T. Senter would preach. Rev. Mr. Robertson reports a highly successful year at his own church, adding that since his incumbency the church debt has been materially reduced.

Mount Vernon church is well represented at the conference this year and an eagle eye will be trained upon possible aspirations by Lynchburg people to resecure Rev. Dr. Senter who has been at Mount Vernon for the past year. There is no evidence of any effort on the part of the Hill City people to win his return and it is viewed as unlikely tha tany movement in that direction will be made. It has been reported that so great was the affection of his former congreation to him that for many Sundays Lynchburg people were found worshiping in the Mount Vernon congregation during the early part of the new conference year.

Dr. Senter this morning expressed the belief that he would be returned to Danville and he was inclined to dismiss the report that his former Lynchburg church might seek his return. There is every assurance that the Danville minister will remain in the Virgnia conference for it is learned that a call he has had under consideration from an Atlanta church, which would necessitate his removal to the Georgia conference has been acted upon negatively.

There is no big issue before the conference this year. The unification will not be voted on until 1925 but this, in the opinion of the parliamentarians will not prevent the presentation from the floor of a resolution ailing for its endorsement or its condemnation, just as the conference might be called upon for an expression on liquor law enforcement or kindred subjects in which Methodists are interested. It has been reported in the press that Bishop Candler supported by the more conservative element of the conference will seek to delay the inevitable division until 1925 and will discourage any expression on unification this year. However, there is no rule which could be invoked to prevent an expression if called for from the floor. Both Bishop Candler and Bishop Collins Denny are reported to be against unification while Bishop Meuzon a well known figure in the Southern church is leading the fight for unification. It is generally recognized that the Virginia conference is well divided on the question though proponents of unification fear that the necessary two-thirds majority will not be mustered.

tary messages were picked up from the air-cruiser by stations on this side.

Captain Steele, in the message relayed to the Boston navy yard at 1:00 a. m., and apparently badly garbled in transmission, said that in valving out gas when the airship became "too light," after passing over the Azores, one gas cell was "slightly torn," but was repaired "immediately without damage." A light breeze was at the stern of the craft, he said, when she left the islands.

The other message from Captain Steele, who will command the German-built air-cruiser when she is formerly turned over to the American government, described the voyage up to the point of Azores and the life on board ship. The ship had averaged a sixty-knot speed on the first stage to the islands, the message said, with the air "bumpy" during the first part of the forenoon but "calming later."

"Ship will set direct course from Azores to Lakehurst," the message continued. "Since blowing valves this morning cells are about 90 per cent. full. Plenty inside hull light coming through after cover and through window near keel. Walk just below nose cap where a fine view ahead may be had but the keel corridor is a lonesome place. Wash water exhausted. Razors and tooth brushes having a rest but excellent dinner today. Soup, boiled ham, string beans, pudding, cream. Getting accustomed to routine. Sleepinring off watches. Some eccentric ones play phonograph, others writing letters. No card playing yet, however. Pico Islands just ahead at 1:30."

CREW AT HANGAR ANXIOUSLY AWAITS SHIP

(By The Associated Press)

DIRIGIBLE HNGAR NAVAL AIR STATION, LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 14.—This hugs air park, destined home of the ZR-3, was ordered under emergency regime at 12 noon today. Its 28 officers and 400 sailors and marines were on their toes at dawn, however. Word had flashed over the field during the night that direct communication had been established with the big dirigible and that all was well with her and that she might be expected late tonight or early tomorrow morning.

This morning there began in earnest all the manoeuvering of paraphernalia and personnel which has been rehearsed long and often.

Whirring motors slid open and shut the ponderous doors of the high domed guest room which awaits the visitor.

Landing signals were inspected again and loaded up on trucks, ready for quick transportation to the setting spot, field aerologists may designate for the big bag when it pokes a cautious nose over the horizon.

While canvass letters of heroic proportions there were, to be laid out facing skyward if the landing was by day; and rolls of electric light for similar disposition if the ship came in at night.

Out of the dim vastness of the hangar and into the sunlight were wheeled a Martin bomber and a DH-4 observation plane, big craft of their kind, that had looked like flies as they squatted overnight on the floor of the ZR-3 destined guest chamber.

These planes are on a special duty here. They will be fueled and kept at the taking off line ready to dash seaward on a moment's notice if the dirigible should meet any emergency as it nears the end of its long pilgrimage.

At 9:15 o'clock last night news was flashed that the station communications tower had for the first time picked up a faint flash of wireless code from the great bag that glided here from over the sea.

"V-NERM" was all of the message this station was able to reach.

"V" (from "NERM" (ZR-3) that first fragment meant, decoded. It was repeated over and over during 30 minutes and directed to the scout cruisers Milwaukee and Detroit, stationed upon the Atlantic below the proposed route of flight of the airship.

Try as they would, Lieut. T. G. W. Settle and his staff in charge of communications were able to pick up the body of the message.

More powerful stations northward of the Atlantic coast, presumably at New York City, interferred

Later they had better luck. The "Zep" with her not too powerful sending equipment, evidently was in almost constant communication with some one. All but one of the intercepted dispatches were in the English. The one exception was believed here to have been the attempt of a German officer to pick up again the thread of communication with the fatherland that had been broken hours before as the ZR-3 pushed beyond range of home stations.

"Alles wohl an bord shiffe" was as much as the message as could be picked up here—"ll well aboard ship." Other words preceded and followed this fragment. At the end was the time, 11:10 p. m., Eastern standard time.

At 11:25 Lakehurst station turned into the conversations. Wireless it intercepted indicated the Detroit was trying to tell the dirigible something that the airship was willing, but that the Detroit was not receiving her "all right, go ahead" signal. So Lakehurst took up the role of go-between, told the Detroit that ZR-3 was waiting for the ships message and offered to relay both ways if necessary.

Still later Lieut. Settle picked from the air the gist of a wireless query from ZR-3 to an unidentified steamship below her, asking for sea level, wind direction and velocity; barometric readings and temperatures.

This message was intercepted here as a bit of precautionary observation work on the part of the dirigible's navigators—a procedure that probably has been in progress during most of the trip.

Sen. Brandegee Found Dead In His Apartment

been a gathering place for prominent persons.

It was impossible at once to establish all the facts surrounding the senator's death. His secretary, who took charge of the situation at his home, refused to answer any questions beyond making the plain announcement that the senator was dead.

The police excluded visitors pending the arrival of the coroner. Police officials began an inquiy of their own into the circumstances of the death which they were inclined not to discuss pending a thorough examination of the house and the close questioning of all of those who might have pertinent knowledge.

The senator was found in the bath room on the top floor of his home by W. D. Lundy, his secretary, and George Jones, his chauffeu. The odor of gas, Lundy told the police, led him to make a search of the upper rooms when h earrived at the house this moning.

Police said Lundy told them that the gas jet in the room with a hose attached and in the hands of the senator was turned on when the body was found. Later Lundy refused to answer any questions.

Physicians summoned from emergency hospital declared the senator had been dead five or six hours when they reached the home soon after 10 a. m.

Police said Lundy declare dthe senator had left a note. The contents of this were not made known.

The body was fully dressed and lying on a rug on the floor of the room with the head on a pillow.

Senator Brandegee was chairman of the Senate judiciary committee and one of the Republican leades on the foreign relations committee. A close personal and political friend of Senator Lodge, the Republican floor leader, he has been one of the circle of senators which have had most to say in the conduct of Senate affairs since the Republicans regained a majority in Congress.

A native of New London, Conn., where he maintained his home until his death, Senator Brandegee had risen to prominence through a succession of minor offices, including the United States attorneyship of his home district, the speakership of the Connecticut House of Representatives and memberships in the National House of representatives. He was 60 years old and had been in the Senate for almost 20 years. He never married.

The most conspicuous part played by Mr. Brandegee in recent years was in the league of nations fight. Taking a position from the start with the irreconcilable opponents of the Versailles treaty, he threw the powerful weight of his forensic ability against the treaty and the league covenant during the long Senate debate, and later at the Chicago Republican convention in 1920 was one of those irreconcilables who laid down before party leaders a virtual threat to leave the ranks of Republicanism unless the national platform contained a provision which would uphold the Republican senators opposed to ratification.

During the past session of Congress the Connecticut senator was not active on the floor. His health had begun to show the effects of his years but he remained until the last a trusted conferee of Republican congressional leaders on all important questions of policy.

shaw says the specimens on exhibit in Danville this year are as perfect as could be hoped for. On the extreme left are rows of picked apples produced by S. S. Stevens. There is not an imperfect fruit among them. Dr. Sam Guerrant, of Franklin, also has a display, also J. F. King of Peters Creek. The handsome magnum bonum fruit of prime eating quality is freely in evidence as are the large green pippins made famous by Albemarle which county it is recorded supplied the late Queen Victoria with her favorite fruit. There are also mellow gold apples and the crimson winesaps.

The exhibit of the state department of game and fisheries was this morning claiming general interest. The good sized black bear which incessantly paced its cage under the merchant's building showed only too plainly that he wished to retire to his native quarters. There is nothing particularly ferocious about him. He is said to have come from Russell county. The giant and majestic eagle is another fine specimen. He stands first on one foot and then on the other, throwing back a penetrating stare at those who gather before its cage. It is of the largest type to be found in the state. Nearby are the fish hawks and the more common hawk, both excellent specimens. The sapient owls blinking to the light are in fine feather and of large variety. The less formidable but equally interesting exhibits are ranged in pens close to the entrance and are well worth looking at. There are two goundhogs of different type and some attractive white squirrels. The Virginia coyote is also an attraction as few people knew that the prairie dog so common in the west is to be found in Virginia.

The sundry amusements are in greater quantity than ever seen in the fai grounds before and the free attractions to be given for the first time at 3 o'clock this afternoon are also reported by Secretary Watkins to be of a high order.

The inevitable motor car is also in evidence at the grounds and the multitude of foreign state licenses is noteable. Scores of concessionnaires who maintain small booths are travelling from city to city in their own machines packing their dismantled booths and their merchandise with them.

The Merchant's Building, the mecca toward which the women travel when they go to the Fair, was teeming with life this morning and fairly running over with exhibits brought in at the last minute. Flowers, flowers, everywhere was the impression one received at the entrance. A handsome display of home-grown dahlias exhibited by Dr. G. W. Johnson, was grouped in artistic arrangement to the right and added greatly to the general ensemble of the long space occupied by women's handiwork.

The hundreds of specimens of canned fruits and vegetables, the cakes, the pies and other delicious smelling things from the kitchens and pantries of the community's housekeepers, bore testimony to the fact that women still cultivate the art of cooking and serving, in spite of the frequent assertion one hears to the contrary.

The many improvements that have been invented and discovered for lightening of women's work have brought about the result of better service with time to learn the most approved scientific methods.

There is a decided difference in the specimens of needlework showing the trend of the present fashions.

Striking examples of artistic skill are to be found in the collection of canned fruits and vegetables.

Mount Vernon Asks Return of Dr. Senter

The fourth quarterly conference of Mount Vernon Methodist church, was held at the church last night with Rev. S. J. Battin, presiding elder in the chair. This was a final report on the conference year and revealed the church to be in a healthy state with fine response made toas sessments and a numerical increase in church membership. Officers of the church were als oelected for the ensuing conference year. The fiscal report showed that $37,500 was raised for all purposes during the year, this being $7,500 more than the year previous despite a year notable for financial and industrial depression. The average payment of each member was $47.86. The Sunday school report showed that the largest Sunday school of the church's record had been maintained. Other reports indicated progress in the several line sof church endeavor, the board of stewards feeling highly gratified by the report which Mr. Battin will make to the conference.

During the meeting a resolution was adopted with enthusiasm asking for the return of Dr. Senter.

Dr. Senter leaves tonight to attend the annual conference at Epworth church of which he was pastor for five years, from 1914 to 1910. While in Norfolk he will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Southgate. Organization of the church last night resulted as follows: Stewards—

Frank Talbott, J. O. Warthen, C. D. Gaver, R. L. Peerman, C. S. Anderson, W. H. Cousins, W. T. Cousins, L. N. Dibrell, H. R. Fitzgerald, Mrs. H. R. Fitzgerald, F. M. Hamlin, J. T. Hamlin, C. E. Harris, W. B. Jordan, G. S. Moore, F. H. Wheatley, Chas. Orchard, Green Penn, J. H. Schoolfield, Jr., Mrs. J. H. Schoolfield, Jr., C. H. Sheppard, F. W. Townes, J. C. Watson, Mrs. J. C. Watson, A. Rucker Parker and E. F. McGee. J. Carson Watson was re-elected Sunday-school superintendent; H. R. Fitzgerald, lay leader; Frank Talbott, district steward; F. W. Townes, alternate; recording steward, John Schoolfield, Jr.

CLEVELAND MAN ROBBED OF CAR ON ROAD IN HALIFAX

(Special to The Bee)

SOUTH BOSTON, Oct. 14.—Peter Harris, of Cleveland, Ohio, while enroute to Danville yesterday to meet his brother, was robbed of his money and automobile by two strangers whom he had befriended by giving a lift in his machine. Mr. Harris left this morning for Danville where he will keep the appointment with his brother and also to notify the police in an effort to apprehend the two strangers.

Harris was stopped at a point near Foster's store on the main highway by two men, who asked him for a lift. The motorist accommodated the strangers who appeared tired and weary. After going a short distance, the man who had occupied the front seat with him, placed a gun against his ribs and ordered him to stop the car. The machine came to a standstill, according to Harris story, the two men ransacked his pockets and then took possession of his car, which was a Ford, and drove off in it, telling Harris to "beat it."

The machine was a 1923 model and bore an Ohio license tag number 291,831 and had additional wind breakers, also two spare tires on the rear, demountable rims and a spotlight of aluminum finish.

One of the men was described by him as about five feet nine inches wearing a dark brown suit and a gray soft hat. He also wore a large diamond ring on the middle finger of his left hand. Wild Bull Goes on Rampage and Is Finally Shot

A vicious bull went on a rampage this morning and became so furious and created such excitement that Popice Officer Foster Harris, killed it, only after the animal had began a charge towards him. An end was put to the bull's wild stampede on Newton street, following chases which carried the pursuers a point way down the river.

Early this morning the bull managed to escape from a herd belonging to Haraway's meat concern. It made a wild dash for liberty, pursued by a number of employers. Part of the time the men were running the bull and part of the time the bull was running the men and after a while. Officer Harris was shooting the bull. It was a bully hour and a half which was spent in the chase which worked both ways. When the bull plunged once at a negro employe trying to capture it, the man made such a hasty retreat that he fell or tumbled over himself several times and sustained a long gash on the knee, sliced a place in his hand and received a number of bruises otherwise.

About nine o'clock a call came to police headquarters for an officer, it having been concluded that the only way to canture the animal or to end its wild rampage, would be to shoot it. Police Officer Harris jumped into a car and hurried to the scene on Newton street. A crowd of a hundred or more persons were watching the show from points of vantage, but needless to say, none were within reaching distance of the animal. When one ventured from the yard, the bull made a vicious plunge and raised a cloud of dirt.

The officer got out of the car about a hundred yards distant and with revolver in hand, approached with caution. He had not taken many steps when the bull saw the blue coat—he could not have been more enraged than if it had been a red coat—and he started to pursue the officer. Harris leveled his revolver nad sent a bullet directly beneath the left eye of the charging animal. It stunned him a little. Employes had warned that one bullet would only enrage him worse. The officer, with the bull still coming but by now about fifty yards away, levelled the gun again and this time the bullet struck the animal squarely in the forehead. Sighs of relief were breathed and quiet soon prevailed again.

25 WAGON LIADS OF BONES WILL ENRICH UTAH UNIVERSITY

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 13—The world's most unique caravan is what University of Utah officials term the recent expedition to Salt Lake City from the Jensen, Utah, fossil quarries of 25 horse-drawn wagons loaded with the remains of prehistoric animals which are to be assembled in the museum of the institution

Millions of years ago these monsters roamed the earth and, with their addition, the university hopes to have one of the most complete museums in the country.

In addition to the complete head of a carniverous dinosaur, a rarity of inestimable value, the bones ready for shipment are those of a brontosaurus, ceratosaurus, stegosaurus and diplodacus.

Plans call for each wagon to be loaded with approximately 2,500 pounds of bones and drawn by four horses In all the total weight of the bones to be transported is estimated at 50,000

For some time University of Utah workers under the direction of Dr Earl Douglass of the Carnegie Museum of Pittsburgh, Pa., have labored to secure the specimens. With great industry they have chiseled the bones from the sandstone, coated them with a concrete preparation and crated them

The Tangle

An Intimate Story of Innermost Emotion Revealed in Private Letters

LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT TO MRS. SALLY ATHERTON

Dear Mrs Atherton You will doubtless be surprised when you see this letter to find I have decided to send my resignation to the Acme Advertising Company to take effect the first of next month. You of course know I had decided that under no circumstances would I accept my father-in-law's proposition to come here and manage his steel plant I remember you approved of my decision

That approval made me very happy, for you doubtless are aware by this time, without my telling you, that I have come to depend greatly on your approval of my opinions and decisions Indeed, I think some of my decisions in the last few months have depended upon your confirmation.

You will remember how we both decided that it would be very unprofitable on my part to accept the management of the plant, for as you said, Mr. Hamilton was such an aggressive man, he would not be able to leave it all to me, he would be forever butting in

However, when I arrived here I found that circumstances had changed the whole aspect of the matter Instead of wanting to make me manager while he was taking a rest, I found that Mr. Hamilton knew he would never be able to work again, and that within the next few days he was going to his long rest. He had been impatiently awaiting my coming, for the doctor had informed him some days ago that he could only count his life by days, perhaps hours I think he has literally kept himself alive until he could talk to me.

This morning my father-in-law and I had a long and very confidential talk, and if I can at the end of my days look back upon a life as well spent as his, I shall not worry about my future destination.

Mr Hamilton has made me the sole executor of his estate, and he has appointed me manager of the steel plant in his place. You know he has 51 per cent of all the stock and can do this He has even fixed my salary at fifty thousand dollars a year I really do not know what I shall do with so much monye particularly as Leslie will have quite an income of her own.

He has made little Jack equal beneficiary with his own two children of the income of his estate, which is not to be divided until the death of his wife, when her third will be distributed between any grandchildren that may be living at the time Ten per cent of all net income is to be distributed to charity each year.

I am telling you all this, my dear to understand that under no circumstances could I have refused Mr. Hamilton's request. First, of course you know, I am bound to him by not only ties of friendship but I stand in place of one of the sons he never had. It was up to me to se that his wife and daughters had the share he wished them to have in the rewards of the work he has done so well. On this account if for no other reason I have accepted his trust and will try to carry it on

Mother to Give Away Two Babies

Mrs. Mihael Brescia's triplets and their aunt

MAYNARD, Mass., Oct. 14.—Triplets have brought to Mrs Michael Brescia this triple problem.

How to rear a family of nine children on an income of $12 a week?

Will she have to part with two of them until the economic tide turns

And, if she does let them go, how will she choose, which two will it be?

This last question she finds hardest of all to answer. Any mother would She runs up and down the list of names, vainly trying to figure how she possibly could do without any one of them and, at the same time, faced with the problem of how to feed and clothe them

'How can a mother decide?' she asks.

This hardy young mother of 31, who has brought 12 children into the world—three of them died—has all but concluded that she must part with two of the new-born triplets

For it seems impossible that all 11 can struggle along on the $12 that Michael brings home from the woolen mills after long hours at the stretching machine Furthermore conditions in the wool industry are most unsettled.

If it were summer, figures Mrs. Brescia, things would be better. Then the little garden at the side of the simple white cottage would be producing a portion of the daily food.

But winter is near and the babes must be kept warm; they must have substantial food and the older ones must go to school The rent is $14 a month and, with thre more mouths to feed, someone would be likely to go without.

No it has all but been decided, that as soon as the infants are able to feed two of them must be loaned temporarily.

But which two There is a heart-twister for any mother

"I do not know yet," she says hesitantly.

The stronger two, Mrs. Brescia will probably say in the end For if one should be sickly or not so robust she could not bear to see it go to other hands No, this would be the one she would have to keep, and give a mother's care.

When the wool market picks up, it may be that Michael will bring home $22 a week in his pay envelope again and, with such affluence the two wee ones can come home again.

HELPFUL HINTS

PEANUT ROAST

Peanut roast, a good substitute for meat loaf, is made by grinding peanuts very fine, mixing with bread crumbs and egg and seasoning, and baking it until it is a rich brown.

MUST BE DRY

Wools should be nearly dry before you attempt to iron them after laundering

FOR CREAM SOUPS

One level tablespoon of flour or two-thirds of a level tablespoon of cornstarch wil thicken a cup of liquid for cream soups.

USE SODA

Soda added to the water for boiling vegetables that are a little old wil make them much more tender.

FOR PATENT LEATHER

Scratches on patent leather shoes will not be noticeable if they are painted over with a mixture of olive oil and black ink applied with a fine brush.

TO CLEAN TUB

Kerosene oil is better than scouring brick for removing the ring that is deposited on the sides o fthe bathtub.

SODA OR AMMONIA

For cleaning and for laundry purposes hard water should be softened by the addition of washing soda or ammonia.

RUB WITH SALT

Rub egg stained spoon and other badly tarnished articles with salt before they are washed.

HEM DISH TOWELS

It is best to hem your dish towels and dishcloths as the lint and threads from unhemmed cloths are apt to obstruct the sink drain.

BE ACCURATE

Success in pastry making is achieved by accurate measurements. Always use standard measuring cups and spoons.

REMOVES MILDEW STAINS

To remove mildew stains mix equal parts of powdered starch and soft soap and half as much common salt and the juice of a lemon. Soak the spots with this and put in the sun to dry.

FOR BOILED FISH

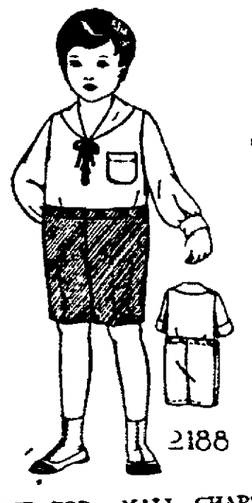

Egg sauce is the proper accompaniment for boiled fish A few bread crumbs spread over this sauce makes it delicious.

SUIT FOR MALL CHAPS

A suit just like ne "other feller's" is going to appeal to a little man, for, as you no doubt have learned, men, however young, are prone to wear anything that sets them off from the rest of the crowd.

This little suit will please Mother too, since its extremely simple construction enables even a beginner to make it in short time with no difficulty.

For the lad who goes to school, wool serge would be best for the little trousers, with a cotton shirting for the waist. For very small boys, make the entire suit of cotton suiting, mercerized poplin, or linen.

The suit pattern No. 2188 cuts in sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. Size 4 requires ¾ yard 36-inch for trousers and 1 yard 36-inch for the waist. Price 15c, in stamps or coin (coin preferred).

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

SPORTS SCRIBE HOLDS RECORD FOR GRID WORK

By NEA Service

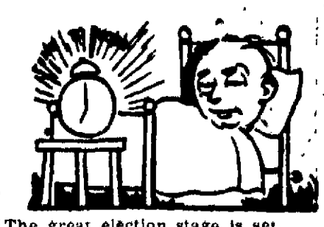

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 12.—An official in 275 games in 12 years—most of them as referee—is the record of Edward W. Cochrane, local sports editor, who probably has refereed more games in that time than any other sports writer in the United States and as many as any other football referee.

This is a remarkable number of gridiron contests, considering the fact that the football season lasts about seven weeks each fall.

This season's schedule for the Kansas City man is typical of the schedule he has had every fall since he started officiating in the Missouri Valley district in 1912. He has 30 games listed, including the Nebraska-Oklahoma, Kansas U.-Oklahoma A. and M., Iowa State-Drake, Drake-Kansas Aggies, Southern Methodist University-Oklahoma A. and M., Kansas U.-Washington U., Drake-Grinnell, Iowa State-Nebraska and the Southern Methodist U.-Arkansas contests

Cochrane was selected as official in the Notre Dame-Nebraska game but could not accept because of a previous engagement.

DAVIS ENTERS ILLINOIS WITH HOPE OF VICTORY— MAKES APPEAL TO LABOR

(By The Associated Press)

ABOARD DAVIS TRAIN EN ROUTE SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct 14—John W. Davis Democratic presidential candidate, left Indiana today and campaigned his way through southern Illinois He carried with him across the Wabash, however, a hope of victory, which he admitted he did not feel when he entered Indiana and which he said had sprung up to absolute confidence during his travels in that state

In his appeal to Indianans in Terre Haute, Mr Davis re-stated his labor creed rights to all men and special privileges to none—and left his promise to "hold the scale of justice fair and equal between every man, woma nand child."

From [illegible] Mr Davis said the country had [illegible] the full measure of prosperity under the leadership of Woodrow Wilson and "referred more legislation beneficial to labor than had ever been passed in any similar period of American history. It was then, he recalled that it was written on the statute books for the first time that the labor o fa human being is not a commodity or an article of commerce.

In elaborating his appeal for labor support, the candidate pointed to the enactment of the law recognizing the right to organize for the promotion of labor's welfare and to collective bargaining "You have the writ of injunction limited," he added, "the eight hour day recognized and what more coul dany labor party have given you than the Democratic administration while it was in power?

On the other hand, Mr Davis took occasion in Indiana to make a restatement of Democratic contributions to business While it was not a business man's party which was elected in 1912 he said business had passed the federal reserve act, the greatest piece of financial legislation this country ever knew

Had this government been devoted to business principles alone during the Wilson administration it could have had greater contributions than the reserve act he said

A note on the agricultural record of Wilson regime also was sounded in the Terre Haute address

There was no farm party elected in 1912 Mr Davis said but the farmers of this country for the first time in the farm loan credit set the same sort of credit as the business men of the country had enjoyed for years They received the warehouse act and a long list of legislation peculiarly adjusted to themselves What more would a farm party have given you if they had been in power then, he?

Against these appeals and promises Mr Davis painted for the Indiana voters a picture of Republicanism which he said had been revived by the Harding and Coolidge administrations

As a matter of fact he declared if farmers go to power President Coolidge and the last Congress most of those members are candidates for re-election, you will have the same sorry spectacle of governmental impotence that has marked this country in the months that have gone by

UNWANTED CHILD PROVES A PLEASING SURPRISE

—o—

If there are any who did not have the pleasure of witnessing "The Unwanted Child" at The Majestic yesterday on account of its title being somewhat suggestive, they should by all means avail themselves of the opportunity of seeing the play today. There is absolutely nothing suggestive and it is a comedy that will be enjoyed from the beginning to the end. "Jock Kearney is a real comedian as a true country boy. The season for road shows opened yesterday at the Majestic theatre with "The Unwanted Child." -Florence Edna May's comedy - drama in four acts. Two performances were given, one a special matinee for ladies only, and the other last night, both to full, but not capacity houses. The play is a homey story about folks on the farm, centering around "The Unwanted Child." Those who were expecting something risque were disappointed, for the story is one revolving around the pure life in the country, which gets a number of upsets when the "smart guys" from the city come. The performance last night touched a responsive chord in the heart of the audience. It will be presented again today at two performances—another matinee for the ladies, and the final one tonight.

The plot of the story holds interest from beginning to end, there being a run of drama, pathos and comedy, some of which touches on the slapstick variety. Justin, the farmer's foster-stepdaughter, played by Miss Bruce Henry, furnishes the foundation for the title. She portrays the role of a foundling who knew what it was to be "unwanted child," in a pleasing manner.

The play is farcical in a way. It is a good comedy, though at times interspersed with dramatic incidents, which, when reaching a climax, revert suddenly to some funny situation. Jack Kearney is the favorite of the cast in the part of Dave, the farmer's awkward son, who has a heart of gold. He makes things merry throughout the plot, getting off a lot of comedy about the cut of city folks' clothes and their mannerisms. Kearney demonstrated that he is a clever comedian, who knows when to stop after "getting off" some funny incident. The audience seemed more concerned about him and laughed with him through his comedy than it did most of the time in the real plot of the play.

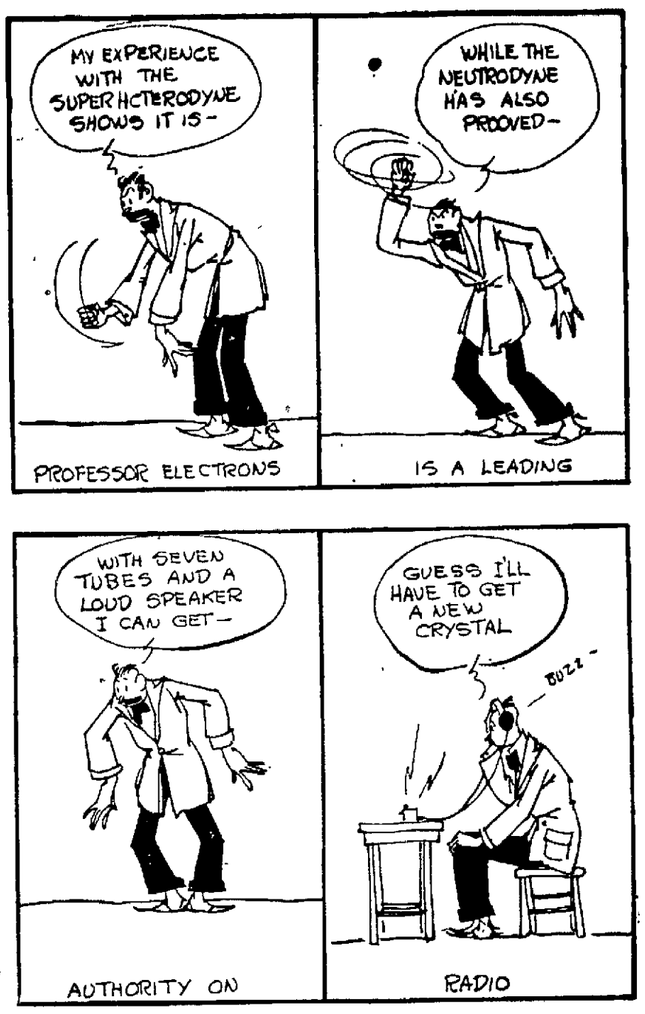

There are also Ebenezer Ditson, the farmer, played by Teddy Le Duo; Mrs. Downes from the city, played by Jean McAlpin, and her son, Gilbert, played by Kiley Harrison; Dorothy, her daughter, enacted by Eleanor Ryan and Mrs. Lucy Barton, her friend, who is also a person somewhat a mystery, until the end, the role being played by Laura Hill.

The story opens in the country with the city folks boarding at the home of the Ditsons. Gilbert, the young artist, weds Justin, the foundling, left on the doorstep of the home when a child, after a brief courtship, or after Mrs. Barton had jilted him, on seeing and examining a locket worn by Justin when she was left at the home. The next move is to the city for Gilbert and Justin, following considerable interference on the part of Gilbert's mother, who strove to prevent the marriage—only after it had been secretly solemnized. Developments in the case produced one trying situation after another for the young couple—an unwanted child and the wealthy society youth. Then the startling revelation that—but wait, to divulge any more would spoil the performance for those who are to see it today. It's a story which is far from the kind that comes into the mind when the title—"The Unwanted Child"—is recalled. A heart-interest love story, with some unwished-for situations, which as in all good plays are ironed out in the end, and plenty of good comedy to offset the serious of the performance—that's "The Unwanted Child."

SAGE AND SULPHUR DARKENS GRAY HAIR

—o—

It's Grandmother's Recipe To Restore Color, Gloss and Attractiveness.

—o—

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.—adv.

CITY OF DANVILLE RECORDS ARE SECURE FOR MOST PART

—o—

Do you ever wonder if that marriage license certificate or real estate transfer record could be duplicated at the Danville courthouse if yours was lost or destroyed by fire and if the courthouse was destroyed by fire?

Yes-siree, these and other official papers are carefully protected and preserved at the courthouse. The north wing of the building, a one story affair, is used exclusively as a vault. The materials in this vault were selected for the prime purpose of protecting records against fire, theft and dampness.

Vault Is 25 Feet Square.

The huge vault—about 25 feet square—has a time-lock, bolted windows and thick walls of stone and steel. And the police headquarters are just across the hall. And within a stone's throw is the Patton street fire station. Corporation court papers are filed in the elaborate filing system here also, Deputy Jos. Stewart said.

So, you newly married couples can tuck your worries and rest secure that you can get a duplicate of your marriage license if anything should happen to either your place of abode or the courthouse.

At the Municipal building, there is a stone vault in the office of the superintendent of public utilities, which is believed to be secure against the ravages of fire, even though it is referred to as "antiquated." The vault is built of steel girders and brick, but has no time lock. The interior is musty looking—testimony to its age.

City Council Records.

In this vault are kept chiefly the records of the city council. In company with Berkley A. Pollok, bookkeeper of the water and gas department, the reporter inspected the vault and found some books dating back as far as 1879. The vault has no modern all-steel filing cabinets but plain ordinary wooden shelves.

The city tax collector has an iron safe, in which he keeps records of his office. D. P. Garvin, tax collector, said that after the end of the fiscal year, he does not absolutely have to preserve his office records. The auditor winds up the collector's books at the beginning of the year and a new year is begun without being encumbered with records of the preceding year.

On the second floor of the Municipal building, such valuable papers as bonds of city office holders, insurance papers, etc., are protected in a metal safe. Auditor Richard P. Moss must be content at the present time to get as much as he can in the space-limited safe. All vouchers and correspondence at present is stored in a wooden filing cabinet. Also papers sent to the auditor from the various city departments for verification. If these were destroyed there would still be a record in the departments from whence they came.

THE DANVILLE FAIR

—o—

A casual glance over the Danville Fair at its opening day reveals that the event this year is of greater proportions and of larger instructive value than perhaps any similar event staged here of recent years. At the risk of repeating a time worn phrase, it is bigger and better than ever and reflects something of the energy, time and forethought which Henry B. Watkins, the Fair secretary and A. D. Starling, its president, have given to the event. It is worth while remembering that Fairs although automatic in their annual cycle, require a deal of preparation. They represent careful preparation through the year. It is big business in every sense of the word and success or failure depends very materially upon efficiency in organization. Both officials are in line for encomiums before we get down to the business of enjoying the Fair.

The Fair is a great factor in the consolidation of feeling between the city and the rural element which sustains it, and it is an old and worthy institution. The highly organized event of today is but the evolution of the medieval festival when men gathered to show their wares, to exchange ideas to profit by them, and to cultivate friendly relations. The wheel of progress will never change this principle, and Danville this week should be the meeting place of farmers of Piedmont Virginia and our Carolina friends beyond the nearby border where they can mingle and exchange helpful views and at the same time see what others are doing in progressive farming. Danville welcomes one and all in the hope that not only will they enjoy the pleasurable entertainment but will find the annual event instructive and of definite value in their work.

DECIDED BY ONE VOTE

—o—

"In 1811 a Rhode Island farmer dallied to release his pig from a fence and arrived at the polls too late to cast his vote. The Federalists lost that precinct by one vote; as a result, a representative who favored war with Great Britain was elected to the legislature, which in turn by a majority of one elected a United States senator who favored war. Then the Congress, by a majority of one, declared the war, generally known as the War of 1812."

The foregoing is quoted from the political observations of Richard T. Greener. It should be re-read and memorized by the man who says to himself: "Shucks! my vote doesn't make much difference. Guess I will not go to the polls."

Our country, in the Colonial days, fought a hard and bloody war to win its independence and to establish government by majority.

This principle of government by majority vote is the most valuable possession of democracy.

Yet for many decades there has been an increasing tendency among voters not to cast their ballots in presidential elections.

This tendency has reached a grave and critical point where we are very close to government by minority.

In the 1920 presidential election, for every 100 who voted, 56 who were legitimately entitled to vote stayed away from the polls.

Do you want government by majority or by minority? You answer quickly: "By majority!" But you help destroy government by majority if you neglect to register and cast your ballot.

The vote-slacker, by not voting, expresses indifference as to what kind of government we have, good or bad.

The ballot is the foundation of popular government. By wise use of the ballot, citizens can remodel our political and economic institutions—in short, can have any kind of government they want.

Are you really indifferent about whether we have good government or bad? No! a thousand times, no!

Is your lone vote unimportant among millions? Remember the Rhode Island farmer whose failure to vote may have caused a war, and again you answer: "No! a thousand times, no!"

Do you want better government, a voice in making it better? Do you want to help keep America a government by majority? Yes! a thousand times, yes!

Then be sure to cast your ballot this fall.

Vote without fail! Vote without fail! Vote without fail!

Your vote is needed. Your vote is needed! Your vote is needed!

LEST WE FORGET

Lest we forget the fearful destruction wrought in France by the Germans during the great war, aside from the terrible loss of life, not only of Frenchmen, but also of Belgians, English, Americans and other participants in the struggle, some figures just issued by the French government are appended.

This announcemeent says that up to the beginning of the present month 82,000,000,000 francs have been spent in the reconstruction of the war devastated region, and of this sum the nation of France paid 54,000,000,000 francs. She also paid 20,000,000,000 francs in restoring roads, canals and railways. Of 22,900 factories and industrial plants destroyed in the devastated regions, 20,872 have been rebuilt. Of 200 wrecked mine shafts, 145 are in activty. Of 6,125 destroyed works of art, 4,800 have been restored. More than 26,000 miles eof roads and 605,900 houses have been rebuilt.

The work of restoration is still going on, but it will be a long time before pre-war conditions are seen in the devastated region.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS.

The Love You Liberate

If you do not love your work there is no plainer fact in this world than this—you can't keep it long.

Liberate your love and it enters into everything you do. It enlarges your soul and strengthens your body.

And the love you diberate is the only love that ever comes back to you.

You can't get anything without giving something.

I have never met an unhappy giver.

We have to do a great many unpleasant things in this world. But if we do them in the spirit of good sports I notice that they aren't so unpleasant after all. This love business, you see, works overtime and doesn't mind.

The love you liberate breeds greater love everywhere it goes. It's contagious. In the long run it travels around the world.

If you are working for a concern and you try merely to "just get by," your job itself shrinks and you with it. Love then scampers to the fellow above or below you who puts his heart in his work and so climbs.

Life is a vast business. A part of it is given over to making people happy and a part to the making of money, building ships, buildings, bridges, and babies toys. All these pursuits are useful and valuable. But love is the salt that savors the whole and drives away the mists so that the sun may shine and warm.

Love is the greatest thing in the world and the most important ingredient that enters into life and work.

Liberate your love. Spread it out. Keep giving it away. Don't mind if you overflow with it abroad. If there is damage done it is easily repaired!

THE REFEREE

By Albert Apple

WASTERS

Paris newspapers are campaigning because in France the dogs eat a ninth as much bread as the people. Shrewd editors over there believe it is ridiculous for a war-impoverished country not to kill off its dogs. To an economist, this is sound logic. A dog lover, however, would claim that a food shortage is worthwhile in exchange for canine affection. Dogs, like all pets, are tolerated mainly because they gratify human vanity. All of us hanker to have a slave, an animial being second-best bet.

—o—

GIFT

Here is one of the rarest combinations—philanthropy and old-fashioned horse sense.

Dr. Becker, wealthy New York optician, will furnish eyeglasses free of charge to every school child in his city who needs but cannot afford them. He figures it will cost him $20,000. It will do more real good than 20 millions spent for economic investigation and similar bromidic "charity work."

SPEED

A mile in 23 seconds—Malcolm Campbell makes it in England with his auto, a 12-cylinder Sunbeam.

Ten years ago such speed would have astounded the world. No one pays much attention to it now for airplanes are far faster. The importance of anything is entirely by contrast, or relativity. The goal of brain training should be to develop a sense of values for determining the importance of things and situations in relation to others. Values are relative.

—o—

EITHER

All indications point to existence of animal and vegetable life on Mars, says Prof. Philip Fox of Northwestern University.

Tropical temperature on Mars at noon is only 10 above freezing; claims another celebrated astronomer, speaking for Carnegie Institution of Washington. He figures our thermometers never would register higher than 42 anywhere on Mars. The south polar temp up there is 95 below zero. You can imagine life existing under such conditions.

Here are two competent authorities seemingly irreconcilably far apart. It makes you wonder whether there is anything more uncertain than "exact science."

—o—

ADAPTED

Despite the terrific cold on Mars, at least two forms of earth life could exist there. One is "evergreen" vegetation. The other is the salmon trout, which always lives in water at a temperature of 40 degrees.

Furthermore, nature adapts all life to fit its environment. Or life adapts life to fit its environment. Or life adapts itself, if you prefer. Vanity suggests otherwise, but there may be special forms of life on Mars that couldn't exist under similar conditions on earth.

—o—

UPKEEP

It costs a little over 10 cents a mile to own and operate a passenger auto. So reports the engineering experiment station of Iowa State College. Out of this, more than 7 cents go for gasoline, oil, tires, repairs and depreciation. Rest is absorbed by garage, license, taxes, interest on investment, etc.

How does your bus compare with the average?

The day is approaching when taxis by the millions will compete in a life-and-death struggle with private individual ownership.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

The Poor Shot

I'm what the hunters laugh to see,
I'm what the hunters joke about,
I think they coined a phrase for me
I'm what they term a "rotten shot"
For always when the partridge rise
There seems a mist before my eyes

I love to see the dog at point,
I like a crisp October day,
I like the shout they call "the joint,"
At night I like to "hit the hay."
Perhaps I'm happiest of the lot
Because I am a rotten shot.

I call it hunting when I go
To tramp the woods with dog and gun
And friends it is a joy to know,
But always when the day is done
I find it pleases me to say
The birds I shot at got away.

It is enough for me to be
Out there where life is free from shame,
To rest beneath a friendly tree
And cast to peace while seeking game.
Sometimes I think 'twould spoil it all
If at my hand a bird should fall

My faults are many but at last
When my career on earth is run
And I am judged for all that's past,
And blamed or praised for what I've done,
Perhaps it will not be forgot
That I was called "a rotten shot."

Life's Darkest Moment

The Affair at Flower Acres

by CAROLYN WELLS

©1924 by NEA Service Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Malcolm Finley, returning from Japan, is invited to Flower Acres, the Long Island home of Douglas Raynor, husband of Nancy who is a former sweetheart of Finley's. Finley discovers that Raynor is tyrannizing over Nancy and is incensed. Finley goes to Flower Acres with a friend, Ezra Goddard, and sees Nancy and Nancy's devoted brother Orville Kent, and Raynor's sister, Miss Mattie and others. Finsley realizes he is regarded with suspicion by Raynor and Miss Mattie because of his old love affair with Nancy. Finley gardens of the estate and is discovered by Miss Mattie. "I felt sure that you would be making love to my brother's wife," 'she says. Finley has calmed her suspicions when Dolly Fay, a little neighbor girl, shakes a finger at Nancy and Finley, and says, "Got your spooning done"

—o—

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

She said nothing, but her thin lips came together in a straight line of faded pink, and her thin gray hair seemed almost sentient as the canny old head wagged in understanding.

"It was you I was spooning with..." Finley said to her, with a glance of exaggerated reproach. "You called me your fairy prince—and then you ran of and left me."

Chapter III
Who Fired the Shot?

Luncheon, that day was not a festive affair.

Finley caught Nan alone for a moment, just before they were summoned to the dining-room.

"Would you rather I went home today?" he asked, briefly.

"No, oh, no," she said, and a look of distress came to her face. "Don't do that! Stay—stay and protect me—something may happen—"

"Sweethearting as usual?" came Raynor's caustic voice and the two started guiltily apart. Though utterly innocent in word or deed, the conciousness of their mutual feelings made them especialy sensitive to the jibe of Nan's husband.

"Oh, don't mind me," their tormentor went on.

He slipped his arm round her, churkling as he noted her almost uncontrollable shrinking away from him.

"There! there, my beauty," and he touched her cheek caressingly, "she's a restive little filly, Malcolm, she needs a bit of taming yet."

"You don't want me too tame, I'm sure," Nan said, brightly ,but Finley saw the look of utter aversion in her eyes.

Nor was it difficult to understand. Though a handsome-featured man, Douglas Raynor had a pale, anemic look that contrasted sharply with Nan's fine, wholesome color. He seemed, too, a little short of breath, though whether this meant the man was ill or merely in a temper, Finley wasn't sure. But he did wonder if the dietitian knew her business, for, to his mind, Raynor was in need of medical advice.

At the luncheon table he was moody; now bursting into a perfect stream of chatter, then, as suddenly, lapsing into a sullen silence. He called frequently for water, draining his glass at him thoughtfully.

"Stop looking at me, Eva," he cried out. "I suppose water is free—if some other beverages are not."

"I haven't said a word, Mr. Raynor," the nurse observed.

"You don't have to. You just roll those hard-boiled eyes of yours at me, and I know what you mean. Hatfield, give me a pitcher of water—a thermos jug of it. I will have what I want in my own house! Consided.

"Why do yo uhave her here, then?" Goddard inquired.

"Because Douglas thinks he's ill—or would be, if he didn't have his diet carefully watched. But I think he's less well since she came than before."

"He doesn't seem very well,' 'Finley agreed. "Is that the reason he scolds you so much, Nan?"

"I daresay. Though he's always been pettish if I cross him in any way."

"You oughtn't to put up with it!" Finley burst out.

"It's none of your business, Mal," Goddard interrupted. "You've no right to speak like that."

"No, you have not,' Nan said, gravely. "Whatever he say sor does, he's my husband, and therefore entitled to my respect and the respect fo my guests."

"Hullo!" cried Dolly Fay, suddenly appearing before them. "Here you are, and, oh, Nan, I say, what do you think? That Fairy Prince of mine isn't a Fairy Prince at all! He's a whitewashed speulcher! A base dee-deceiver! What do you think he did? He called me a brat! Oh, how I hate you, Mr. Finley!"

"I did —I own up—but it was in a moment o fanger, I apologize."

"And take it back?"

"Bah!' and Dolly made a saucy face at him. "Then I won't play tennis with you—and I do want a game."

"Take me on," and Goddard rose to oblige her.

"Glad to, I am told you're a crack player."

"That was good of old Ezra," Finley said: "I may not get a chance with you alone again. Nan, can I help you in any way?"

"No, dear, of course you can not.' Then she flushed enchantingly at the unintentional word, and said, very seriously, "We can't hide it from ourselves—I do care for you, Malcolm—I thin I always have cared, but I am a wife—and," she drew herself up proudly, "'I am a Caesar's wife. Never shall I fail in the most minute partiular of any duty I owe my husband. I do want you to go away—and I never want to see you again—as long as Douglas lives. If he should —if anything should happen—Oh, Mal, I am at the end of my rope! I an't live with him! I can't. You've no idea how awful he can be—"

"You needn't live with him, Nan. Surely you can get a separation—"

"Oh, no. I didn't mean that!" Nan's horrified eyes spurned the thought. "But—oh, I don't know what I mean only, Malcolm, I am his wife, and as such I owe him all honor and all duty—and I propose to pay it!"

"Fine talk, my dear—but a bit hifalutin!" Raynor stepped out from the house, and came up behind the pair in the swing. "Methinks the lady doth protest too much. You can bet you're going to pay me all you so truly say you owe me. Now, Mr. Finley, as yo useem to be a menace to the tranquil happiness of my home perhaps it would be as well if you began to think of making your farewells. I asked you down here to learn how matters stood between you and my wife. I have learned."

"But I, too, have learned something," Finley said. "I have learned how matters stand between you and your wife, and I have a remark to make —whih is that unless you give me your promise as man to man to treat her with more kindness after I am gone, than you have done during my stay here, I shal not go at one."

"That is a strange thing to say to a husband."

"It is, beause you are a strange husband. Now, if your unkindness to Nan has been simply because of my presence here, and if it will cease with my departure, I will go away immediately. But not otherwise."

"Bless my soul! You presume to dictate to me!"

"I do. As a friend of your wife, and as a friend of humanity, I insist upon the promise I ressure."

"And you shall have it. Mr. Finley, I promise you that if you will remove your presence from my roof tree, I will at once transform myself into the most genile, loving and kind-tempered of husbands. I will be dolie, meek and mid. Can I say more?"

ed.

"Saccharine, of course," Finley said to himself. "What's the matter with me? I'm seeing things. Probably his nibs is forbidden sugar. But why the scared glance? Why, probably he doesn't know it, and would scold if he did. What a brute he is. I wish I could kill him!"

Orry across the table, was nervously twisting the corners of his napkin into spirals. As a result of shell?shock in the war, his nerves were still in bad shape. Yet Orville Kent was not so much affected by the ticking of a clock or any material annoyances as he was by the mental atmosphere about him. And, when Douglas Raynor broke into real tantrums, Kent not infrequently rose and left the table.

At this juncture, however, they all left the table.

Raynor went off at once for the confab with Miss Turner that followed every meal, and that settled the menu for the next one. Thus, three times a day Nan was sure of a half-hour's respite, and those were the only times she was sure of.

"Come, sit in the swing a moment or two, Malcolm," Nan said, her eyes emphasizing the invitation.

"Me, too," asked Goddard, very much on the watch against indiscretions.

"Yes, indeed; I'll sit between you," and Nan appropriated the middle cushion of the wide swing on the west terrace.

"I can't bear that dietitian person," she said abruptly, and de-

DRAKES BRANCH, October 14.—(Grapevine Wireless.)—Are we all going nutty in these soft-drink days, or do we just act that way? Here is a line of chatter with unmistable Apple Sauce flavor, and, as we read we say to ourselves, "he would, like Kelly would!"—

"I'd give anything, said a Danville banker, to us the other day, "to go back to the days when I was a kid—just to throw the old hoe down where I was hilling potatoes while 'Dad' was on the other side of the hill in a nearby field, and sneak off thru woods that used to spread out back of our old homestead.

"I remember how two or three of us would skip down through shaded paths with squirrels chattering on each side and rabbits jumping up just ahead. We'd cut willow poles, dig worms, and go back to the creek a mile away after speckled trout. And there was some fishing there, too.

"And then there was the old swimming pond, and the ball games and riding horses out to pasture and bringing the cows in when the sun began to set. An oh! thousands of things that all regular kids do."

Old Money Bags is childish, all right, but he wouldn't give up his golf clubs for a hoe-handle; not much!

Elks Reminded of Responsibility

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 14 —Realizing the importance of awakening the stay-at-home voter to his duties of citizenship, John G. Price, grand exalted ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, has asked the membership of the order to participate at the November election

In his first official statement to the subordinate lodges of the order, Mr Price under the heading of "Public Duties and Responsibilities," urges Brother Elks, regardless of party affiliation to vote.

"Love of country begets proper care of country and its institutions, and it is pertinent in this particular year to call attention to our duties and responsibilities in connection with the affairs of our country, particularly with reference to the participation in elections.

"Altogether too few of our citizens participate in the actual management of the affairs of our government and this is manifested by the indifference of the great numbers of the electorate who remain away from the polls at election time.

"No great business enterprise can succeed unless the proprietors thereof are watchful and attentive in its supervision and we, the proprietors of our country, have no occasion to complain if by reason of our lack of interest the management of our affairs is placed in improptr hands

"Regardless of party affiliation, the members of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks by precept and example, should endeavor to encourage a more general participation in public affairs, particularly in the exercise of the right of suffrage one of our most cherished privileges"

I took the Vegetable Compound before and after my four-months-old baby was born, and it has always helped me wonderfully. I believe there is no better medicine made for women, and I hope every woman will give it a fair trial."—Mrs. AUGUST R. WIEDERHOFT, R. No. 2. Box 84, Truman, Minn.

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever used. A family supply easily and quickly made. Saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for its healing effect on the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

POSTMASTER ASKS FOR $.200 A YEAR RAISE

By GENE COHN

SOMERSET, Vt., Oct. 14.—Even Babiyon, Tiyre and Carthage fell—and this town of Somerset is slipping fast.

The other day almost all of the city officials and policians departed—both of them.

It lost half of its voters—both of them.

The town clerk, the city treasurer, the constable, the tax collector and the school trustee have all quit—both of them.

In other words Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Leonard are moving.

And, as though that weren't bad enough, Ned Bartlett, the postmaster has demanded a $2-a-year raise and says he'll quit if he doesn't get it.

Nobody in the neighborhood can figure out what Ned's kicking about. He gets $100 a year now.

If he leaves there,ll be only two voters left—Mr. and Mrs. John Taylor. And there are but two pupils left for the school.

Yes, Somerset is fast skidding Two years ago this community had ten legal voters. The Chamber of Commerce, emulating Los Angeles, advertised a population of 12.

The postoffice is located over the mountain at Searsburg, serving the daily stage coach and several small communities.

The one encouraging fact is that Postmaster Bartlett is public-spirited and patient. In spite of his withheld $2-a-year raise and the demonstrated ingratitude of the republic, he still is on the job, as is indicated by the notice in his own handwriting tacked on the office door. It says:

"If you don't see the postmaster, holler!"

Just tell Bartlett that a man can't live on two dollars a week and he will laugh at you.

"Well," he explains, in his quaint drawl, "you see I don't have to keep up a marble building like some of the other postmasters do. I ain't got any clerks and there's only me to feed!

"I don't ask much off of the world I don't eat meat. I'm a vegetarian, I am, and I have a little garden that I tend to. I keep well on fruits, grains and vegetables. Over thar on the mountain side I got quite a little space o' ground and I live simple, just as the Lord intended.

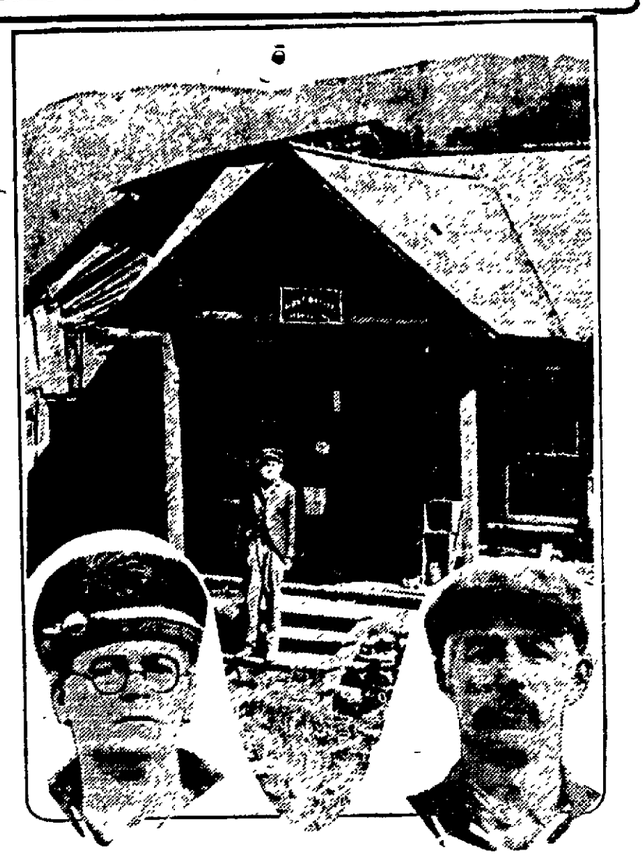

"Now this suit I got on. the pants cost me 97 cents from a mail order house, my shirt cost me 67 cents from the same place You don't need fancy things up here. Khaki is all right. I don't drink cofee, tea or whisky, and that cuts down expenses

"I've been postmaster for 10 years and at the beginning my salary was $75 a year. But things cost more now, and a fellow has to go pretty easy to live well on a $100 a year. So I'm writing a letter to President Coolidge about it

"No I don't want you to think I spen dthe whole $2 every week, because I don't Sometimes I get along on a dollar, but then along come a lot of expenses and it piles up even over $2.'

In complete contentment "Dad" Bartlett passes his years, untouched by the struggles and troubles of the outside world.

"God's will for all people is life and health and happiness," he philosophizes from his seat near the office stove "And if folks fail in gettin' any of these, then God's is being missed"

Scarsburg's postoffice and old Ned Bartlett, 72, who threatens to quit unless his 100-a-year salary raised $2. Inset are S. W. Leonard and his wife who have held the jobs of town clerk, treasurer, onstable, tax collector and school truste at Somerset, but who have decided to move away.

FOX HUNTERS ASS'N. EVENT PROMISES TO BE A BIG AFFAIR

RICHMOND, Oct. 12.—The fourth annual field trials of the Virginia Fox Hunters' Association promises to be one of the biggest sporting events in Virginia this season, according to a story by Ernest C. Meade, editor of the kennel department of the Game and Fish, an organ of the state department of game and inland fisheries in the October issue of the publication.

The field trials will be run at Suffolk, Va., as previously announced, on November 18-19-20-21. The organization is composed of upwards of five hundred fox hunters in this and in neighboring states.

"Although only one stake will be run this year, a free-for-all event lasting the full four days, providing a gruelling test for hounds, horses and hunters, it is expected that fully two hundred and fifty picked hounds from Virginia, West Virginia, and North Carolina will compete for the handsome silver championship trophy offered by the association," the story declares

Asserting that upwards of five hundred sportsmen and sportswomen are expected to attend the trials, the story announces that invitations have been sent to the North Carolina Fox Hunters' Association to participate and that many of the "Tarheel" followers and participants in the sport will be on hand

The city of Suffolk, Mr. Meade said, has planned for the entertainment of the visitors, and these plans include a week of jollification as well as of sport.

One of the homes at which charity should begin is the orphan's.

DAUGHTER OF RABBI WELCOMES 10,000 GUESTS TO HER WEDDING

GALATZ, Rumania, Oct. 13—One of the most elaborate weddings in history was given the other day here by a Jewish rabbi for his daughter.

The feast was of Gargantuan proportions. The guests from all over Rumania, numbered over 10,000 men, women and children. The food supplies consisted of 33 carcasses of beef, 210 sheep and 170 calves. The geese prepared were so many that thir feathers made a hill of considerable height.

The town was virtually occupied by the wedding party, which largely represented the wealth of Rumania, though not its landowners.

Suspecting some political design, the ministry of the interior garrisoned the city heavily with police and troops, but there was no disturbing incident of any kind.

FREAK BLOCK OF ICE FOUND BURIED IN EARTH

RENO, Nav., Oct. 13.—A freak of nature near here in the form of a huge solid block of ice buried 12 feet underground, measuring 60 feet in length, 20 feet in width and 10 feet in thickness, was uncovered recently by a steam shovel, while working on the new Truckee River highway. The workmen, after making numerous attempts to go around the ice, finally were forced to blast their way through it with high explosives.

It is believed that originally the ice, which is estimated to be about 40 years old, was a field of snow on the mountain side above and was compressed into its present form by an avalanche of earth, rocks and trees.

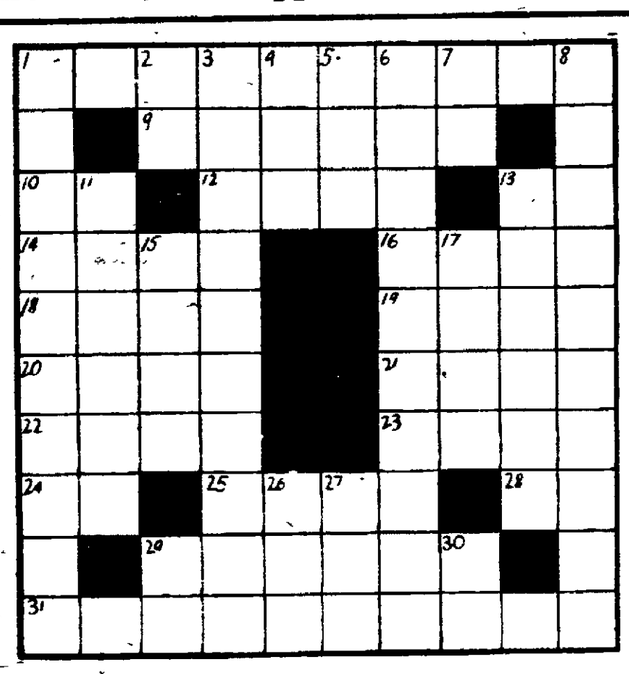

Often when two young folks get their heads together, it's merely in a modern dance.

The Boy Scout troops of your town could be called upon to make an afternoon house-to-house canvass, urging voters to go to the polls.

RECORDS IN SUICIDES AND BIRTHS DECREASES

By GEORGE SELDES

BERLIN, Oct. 13.—New records in suicides and birth decreases were reported by two government departments today. The worst week in Germany's suicide history, according to statistics, was the thirteenth of the year, whereas reports throughout the country show that Germany is becoming the best follower of Margaret Sanger's idea of birth control.

Practically ever since the war the percentage of births in Germany has decreased, so that there will be less cannon fodder when the next war comes, a fact which is causing the junkers great concern, and leading junkers demand that birth control methods be declared illegal. The birth rate in Berlin now is ten in 1,000, compared with twelve in 1922, while a high record was made in 1876 with 47 births in 1,000.

Statistics show that there is an increase in first born, and also in second born, but a big decrease in third and fourth, showing that German families, once most popular, are now limited to one or two on account of the high cost of living and dwelling shortage.

Twelve hundred and forty-three persons committed suicide in Berlin last year, and 17,000 in Prussia, while this year's figures indicate that the former record is being broken Forty suicides in the thirteenth week was the record.

DOVER, England, Oct. 18—There are still several explosive mines, relics of the war, floating about in the Baltic Sea and in English Channel, according to reports which are being filed almost weekly by captains of vessels which ply in these waters. A ship coming from Antwerp recently reported a mine of the Goodwin Lightship in the Channel, and two others were reported nearby by the captain of a vessel sailing from Russia.

SANTA ANA, Cal., Oct. 13—A United States geodetic survey party is engaged in a survey to determine what earth movements have transpired in the past two decades along the 150-mile route extending from Santa Ana to Barstow, north of here, on the Mohave desert.

The precise levels, or sea elevations, are being established at various points along the route, connecting with the marks established by the last survey, in 1906 Comparisons will determine whether changes have taken place as a result of earthquakes or other disturbances

Delightful because Gulbransen music is so expressive! So full of feeling—so full of life—you take a personal pride in producing it.

Accenting, for instance. That's important! For in any piece you play there's a strain of "melody" you must pick out and accent properly, to give it a pleasing rendition.

But, where are the melody notes? In what part of the keyboard do they occur? With the ordinary player-piano that's a real problem. But by observing the Melody Indicator—a simple and convenient little patented guide—you know where the melody notes are, and just where to accent them, on the Gulbransen!

The Melody Indicator greatly simplifies correct playing. In combination with sensitive "pedal-touch" and Gulbransen Instruction Rolls, it is the thing that makes musicianly playing possible!

For Washington It Was "The End of a Perfect Day"

Baseball has had its day. The season is over. The scoreboards will be covered until next spring. The crowd happy as it is, seems to realize that as it drifts out of Griffith Stadium in Washington as the shadows of evening fall over the park. The game is over. So is the world series. For capital fans it was "The End of a Perfect Day" and the greatest game of the year. "Bucky" Harris and his boys have brought them their first baseball championship. The world series flag is flying from the staff in left field. The Nats are champions.

UNIFICATION OF CHURCHES CHIEF TOPIC DEBATED

Methodists Gather at Norfolk For Annual Virginia Conference

(By The Associated Press.)

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 14.—With the arrival this morning of the advance guard of clerical dignitaries and lay officials of the Methodist Episcopal church south, for the 142nd session of the Virginia conference, the question of unification of the north and south churches began to overshadow all other subjects likely to come before the meetings for discussion.

A wide difference of opinion, not only among laymen and ministers but as well among higher ranking clergymen, was evident in the discussions which took place where groups of farriving delegates gathered.

It is not likely that there will be any vote on the subject of unification at the conference, but discussion of the plan of the general conference, will bring out the viewpoints of members of the conference and will show the 400 delegates widely split on the measures to be recommended to the general conference when it takes final action next year.

On the issue of unification delegates to the conference are divided much as progressives and "conservatives." The general feeling is that while younger delegates both clerical and lay are heartily in favor of bringing the opposing arms of the church together in harmony many of the older churchmen oppose the procedure.

Leaders of the church were reluctant to discuss the matter of unification for publication prior to the time when it comes up on the floor of the conference. They admitted however, that discussion of the question at the conference here will no doubt have important bearing upon action to be taken by the general conference.

Bishop Warren A. Candler, of Atlanta, who will preside over the conference was one of the earliest of arriving delegates to reach Norfolk. He took a suite at the Monticello and his headquarters immediately became the center around which revolved almost all who have arrived. The bishop refused to comment on rumors of the predicted "bolt" on the unification issue.

As a preliminary to sessions of the conference, night services will be held tonight at the Epworth church under the auspices of the Epworth league. The program for the services tonight is an innovation in conference history, which usually calls for a sermon by one of the visiting dignitaries.

A general discussion of work and activities of the Epworth leaguers will be part of the program tonight, but a pageant, "This Youth," given by the Norfolk leaguers will be the feature of the evening.

The conference itself will begin tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at the Epworth church. Although no official program is available, it is likely that tomorrow mornings sessions will largely be given over to routine organization. The opening sermon will be preached tomorrow night by the Rev. Samuel Secrest, former pastor of the Epworth church and now pastor of Mount Vernon Methodist church of Danville.

ARMY-NOTRE DAME CLASH AT NEW YORK SATURDAY

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—A hearty crowd of more than 50,00 is expected to witness the Army-Notre Dame football Saturday at the Polo Grounds where one of the most spectacular of the intersectional series between the two rivals will be fought.

The cadets although generally regarded as having a stronger team the 1923 aggregation since Harry Wilson has been added to the backfield, are not considering the game with the safe over-confidence which was credited with hastening their 13 0 defeat by Rockne's fliers last season.

The blue comet which went into the Army contest last year fighting to have a mood in which a normal Rockne team is virtually invincible will not have that psychological advantage this week but will meet an alert group of veteran stars who will be determined to cross Notre Dame goal line—something no Army man has done during the last three years.

Army will outweigh Rockne's team which will have advantage in team. The opposing backfields include many of the recognized stars of the country, but in the clashing lines the cadets will have an edge over the Notre Dame forward wall which has been partially rebuilt.

Zev Makes Run In Fastest Time

(By The Associated Press)

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 14.—Zev, black speed marvel of the Rancocas stable which arrived in Kentucky last Thursday, won his third race in three successive racing days here yesterday when he ran away from Idle Hour farm's good sprinter, Baffling and completed the six furlongs journey in 1 10 1-5, the fastest time recorded at Latonia this fall.

"Got Zev in again tomorrow?" E. R. Bradley inquired of Sam Hildreth, trainer of the Rancocas star, after the race. "Wish there was a spot," asserted Hildreth. "I'd like to see him beat that 1 09 4-5 track record, then I'd retire him to the stud."

This is probably the last year Zev will be seen under colors as it is likely he will be sent to the stud next spring.

Landis Not Yet Through With Scandal Probe

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Sparks from the bomb thrown into baseball by the suspension of Cozy Doan and Jimmy O'Connell for attempted bribery will probably be stamped out separately and vigorously during the winter by Commissioner Landis.

The investigation still is being conducted, Judge Landis said last night before leaving for Chicago. "I won't say whether I am satisfied with how far I have already gone. The future will tell that."

Dan Johnson's alleged accusation went into the world series of 1903 when he asserted that Lou Criger a catcher, had been approached by gamblers. Dreyfus of the Pittsburgh ten maccused Cozy Dolan with tampering. Pie Traynor, Pirate third sacker. There are other charges that will be investigated.

Johnson and Dreyfuss have threatened to force an investigation of the separate threats and many well-known sporting writers encourage a complete inquiry for the good of the game.

St. Paul Wins "Junior" Series

(By The Associated Press)

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 14.—The St. Paul American Association baseball team won the "junior world's series" championship yesterday by defeating Baltimore the International League pennant winner 6 to 2, in the ninth game and immediately a nine-game series with the winner in the Pacific Coast League was arranged.

It will be the first time the championship of the class AA leagues has been determined. The coast league season ends Sunday, and it is an open question as to whether the winning team will be able to leave immediately for the east. Details of the Association-League contest will be worked out later.

Suit Against City Scheduled Wed.; $7,000 Is Sought

A jury from Henry county will be here tomorrow to try the damage suit of Miss Odie Sally against the City of Danville which is set for that day in the Corporation court. Miss Sally seeks to collect $7,000 from the city. Since citizens are defendants in the suit it is deemed improper to call a Danville jury and Judge Withers went out of Pittsylvania county in order to secure a jury which probably has not heard the case discussed.

The jury which tried the civil action of Muse and Rogers against the Danville and Western Railway Company for the cost of drilling a well for the carrier company at Cascade, returned a verdict for the plaintiffs yesterday afternoon for $892.50. The cost was deemed excessive by the railway company.

The suit of Turks Jewelry Store, Inc. against A. L. Terry for the collection of an alleged debt of $23 on a diamond ring, resulted in a verdict for the defendant who was awarded $60 damages against the concern, Terry being required to restore the ring. The defendant alleged that the ring was not of greater value than $40. Papers in the case showed it had been sold to him for $100 but that he had never completed payment. The jewelry concern maintained the value of the ring was as given.

CALL COUNCIL TO ACT UPON ZONING LAW

Ordinance Forbidding Business From Invading Residence Section Approved

A special meeting of the city council has been called to meet at half past seven o'clock tonight for the purpose of considering an ordinance which would prohibit the invasion by commercial enterprises into the residential district. An ordinance providing such limitations was presented last Friday night but action was delayed pending a study of the law by the city attorney who did not know that such an ordinance would be presented. Mr. Aiken has since studied the ordinance which was drawn up by Julian Meade and he believes that it would be sustained by the Virginia court of appeals though, he says, the state legal records show no ruling case. Other states have dealt with the problem but there is a conflict seen in the decisions. Some have upheld similar ordinances and others have held that they were invalid.

In the letter which Mr. Aiken presents to the council tonight however, he expresses belief that the ordinance will stand.

Passage of the ordinance is forecast. Councilmen who objected to action last Friday were not governed in their opposition to the meaning of the ordinance but felt that it should first be approved by the city attorney especially since its passage probably will result in litigation.

A petition has been presented to the council signed by more than seventy residents of West Main street and Mount Vernon Avenue who have heard the report that a gasoline filling station is projected on the triangular-plot of land formed by the angle of West Main Street and Mt. Vernon, close to the home of George C. Martin.

UNSUNG HERO OF 1924 SERIES

BY O. L. SCOTT

(Copyright, 1924, by The Bee.)

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Fred Lindstrom, 18-year-old third baseman of the New York Giants, probably will go down in baseball as the unsung hero of the 1924 world series. His story hasn't been told. Here in Chicago where he has been sparkling on the diamond since he was thirteen, fans scarcely have heard of him.

Young Lindstrom was brought up in the packing house district of Chicago.

It isn't an elite section, bits and lots proved the making of this youngster. He took to the diamond in real style before he was out of the grammar school and at that kept a grade ahead of other youngsters of his age in his studies. It was Coach H. A. Williamson of Tilden Technical High School who first saw big league greatness in the boy. Williamson said today that Lindstrom showed up at Tilden a rangy, ungainly boy but that he soon proved his worth at third base.

"That boy was due to cut a figure in baseball from the start," said the coach. "He had a good head and a sharp eye as natural a ball player as I ever saw. During his two years at Tilden he was lead off man in teams that won the southside championship. He was a good waiter and had a telling eye, just as he has proved in the world series. They can't drive past him in the field and at bat he always was a sure thing.

"Lindstrom never was a slugger but he could hit. He had the knack of connecting and hitting them where they aint as Wilbe Keeler once said. He will be a big league star for years or I miss my guess, and he has never had a minute's apprenticeship in the minors."

After two years at Tilden Lindstrom was induced to transfer to Loyola Prep School for the last two years of his schooling. There is where McGraw's scouts found him.

Still his home town pays no attention to its boy wonder. It's two league teams—one with its $100,000 Willie Kamm never gave him a moment's thought until he begun to glitter in Gotham. Now they are wishing that they had noticed him.

Escaped Leper Causes Shock

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—The night force at police headquarters here received a shock early today when Willard Centilever, escaped leper from the federal colony at Carrville, La., walked in and said he had been commissioned by the 108 inmates there to come to Washington and protest against conditions in the colony.

Before he was hustled off to the quarantine station here, a lonely two-room structure on the river bank, Centilever who did not explain why he put police headquarters first on his visiting list, said the inmates at Carrville had chipped into pay his expenses. He had stopped off at a number of cities on his way up, he said but refused to name them, or tell how he escaped.

Wants $100,000 For Boley

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 13.—One hundred thousand dollars or not a cent.

That's the price set upon the brow of John Bopoloski—none other than Joe Boley himself, the "greatest shortstop in the minors."

Jack Dunn, owner and manager of the Baltimore Orioles, six times champions of the International league, greatest record-breaking club in organized baseball, is the man who labeled Joe.

Joe does the shortstopping for Dunn. He has been doing it for six years—those six years Dunn has been winning pennants by anywhere from six to 16 lengths.

Wilbert Robinson of the Dodgers a year ago shot his price up to $80,000 for Boley. Dunn refused. Robbie went another five thousand. There wasn't a nibble from Dunn.

The White Sox made a bid of $50,000 two years ago. Dunn turned to the society page and continued his reading.

Reported Sold For $100,000.

Now there comes the report that Mr. Dunn has at last sold his prize beauty for the price he wants—$100,000—and the glad news for everybody but Baltimore fandom will be announced in due time.

Boley's admirers do not want to see him leave the Orioles. But they realize that no man can give his best six years on a fighting championship minor league club and still have any too much to spare when he goes up.

Booley either goes up now or never. His six years of toil would avail him nothing, because if a minor can't go up he feels he ha sbeen a failure.

And a man who has shortstopped on a six-time consecutive winner is no bust.

Ten years ago Joe had never seen a baseball. He worked 10 hours a day in a coal mine in Mahoney City, Pa. For months he never saw daylight, working a day turn in the mines.

Joe and a mining donkey collided and he got a bump and a grouch at the same time. The combination caused him to quit his job and get a lung full of fresh air.

Started as Pitcher and Catcher.

From sandlot baseball, where he pitched and caught, Joe ambled into semi-pro baseball at Johnstown and then into pro-baseball as a second sacker at Harrisburg, New York State league.

Dunn got him in 1918, toned him up a bit and shot him in at short.

Dunn was warned that Joe's eyes were bad, due to his long confinement in the coal mines. He was told that Joe would never do at such a vital spot on the field.

Dunn' answer was that he would give Joe a season of daylight and see how it worked.

It worked. Joe hit over .300 and fielded .947 in 137 games. He improved in batting in 1920. And continued to shine afield. Dunn was winning his flags. Offers were made for Boley but Dunn held on to him.

At the beginning of this year Boley's salary was $9,000, more money than paid to any other shortstop in the league.

And what makes Boley's sale story sound plausible is the intimation from Oriole park that Dunn is going to dismantle his great baseball machine this year.

Hank Gowdy Still One Of Best In Game—McGraw

BY BILLY EVANS

Whenever John J. McGraw talks he opens the eyes and ears of those who are listening. The subject of catchers came up the other day when the Giants' manager said:

best catchers in the National League today."

I consider Hank Gowdy one of the

And Gowdy having recently celebrated his thirty-fourth birthday is serving his fourteenth season in the National League. Ancient? A trifle but not too old to be called one of the game's best by McGraw.

It will be recalled that Gowdy orginally was discoverd by McGraw. He was a first baseman with Dallas in the Texas League in 1910 and had never yanked a mask around his big ears.

As Fred Merkle was doing considerable first basing for the Giants that falls when the lean Hankerino arrived, there was no room for the kid from Texas.

Shoved to Braves

But McGraw could use a shortstop and the Boston Braves could experiment with young material. Therefore Gowdy was shoved along to the Braves in company with Al Bridwell, and Buck Herzog once more more joined the Giants' troupe.

When Gowdy reported to the Braves the Braves' catchers were Jonny Kling, once the daddy of them all, and Bill Rariden. But Kling was fading out and Rariden was only a mediocre performer.

Ball players frequently have chang- He was given a trial as a catcher but ed their orginal position. Gowdy in 1912 ranked at the exercme bottom in fielding in a list of 24 catchers His average was .926.

Out of the 24 catchers who were in the National League that season with Gowdy only two remain big leaguers. They are Ivey Wingo and Hank Severeid. Wingo was with St. Louis and Severeid with Cincinnati, both youngsters like Hank.

Batting Featured Series.

Gowdy became a star and everybody knows about his batting record in the 1914 world series against the Athletics when he averaged .545.

McGraw is anything but a bullhead. He always is willing to admit his mistakes. Because he has traded a player that does not necessarily mean that the athlete is bound for the junk-pile.

Two years ago McGraw decided he had fiddled with Earl Smith long enough and the eccentric catcher was traded with Jesse Barnes to the Braves for John Watson and Gowdy.

And don't forget that today McGraw remarks: "Gowdy is one of the best catchers in the National league."

ST. PAUL WINS JUNIOR WORLD'S SERIES

(By The Associated Press)

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 13.—Premier honors in the minor league baseball world rested tonight with St. Paul, achieved through victory today over Baltimore in the deciding game of the junior world's series.

Battling through to their third straight triumph, the Saints humbled the International League champions, 6 to 3, giving them five victories to the Orioles' four, in the post season fray.

Each team made nine hits but the splendid work of Howard Merritt, the Saints' slow curve southpaw, kept the Oriole hits scattered except in the seventh, when they scored three runs on Maisel's homer. Home runns by Dressen and Dixon in the early innings gave the Saints their second and third runs. Alphone Thomas came to grief and retired in favor of Jackson.

After Leo Dixon hit the second Saint homer in the fourth, Jackson gave way to a pinch hitter in the seventh after his balk gave the Saints one of two runs in the sixth. Earnshaw finishing and holding the locals to one run and two hits in the last two innings.

GREATEST SERIES IN HISTORY SAYS COBB

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 13.—Ty Cobb, back home after taking in the world's series, which he described as the greatest in the history of the game, stated today that while he does not intend to play through the entire schedule next season, he will probably take part in 75 or 100 games, thereby denying reports that he would appear in the line-up only occasionally.

Four Men—And Milk.

The Place: A cheese factory located in the country near the boyhood home of President Coolidge.

Present: President Coolidge, Thos. A. Edison, Henry Ford, and Mr. Firestone.

President Coolidge has been demonstrating the methods of making cheese.

Mr. Edison has given a talk on the bacteria employed in cheese making, what they do and how.

"Remember, when you refused to drink milk?"-asked Mr. Firestone.

"Nothing of the kind," said Mr. Edison. "I only scalded it. I always do near cities."

Evidently Mr. Edison is willing to drink milk, or even likes to drink it, but he is afraid to drink raw milk when he is near cities. In other words, he believes in safety first with milk. Unless he knows it to be all right he will not drink it unless he has cooked it enough tod kill the bacteria in it. He calls the cooking process "scalding." The scientific name and also the commercial name for it is pasteurization.

It may have been that Mr. Edison was not speaking accurately when he said: "I always do near cities." Probably what he meant was that he never drank raw milk unless he knew it to be free from tubercle bacilli and other disease producing bacteria.

Milk near cities is not quite as safe as milk in the country. This is because as a rule, near cities, the cows have been tuberculous and the humans have more contagion of the kind men spread through milk. However, the difference between the danger in drinking raw milk in the country and near cities is only relatives

Way back in the country, miles away from any city, cows have tuberculosis; and typhoid fever and other forms of contagion prevail periodically. Under such circumstances raw milk may convey disease. No man can be certain a milk is safe because he is not near a city. What Mr. Edison meant to say, in all probability, is that he will not drink raw milk unless he knows it to be safe.

There are others besides Mr. Edison who decline to drink raw milk because they are afraid of it. The milk producers and milk dealers have found that confidence in milk increases the use of that food.

Vacuum Clean Mosquitoes.

W. C. D., M. D., writes: Read your "fighting Mosquitoes' today. I submit this suggestion which came from a friend with an inventive turn of mind.

Just hook up the vacuum cleaner as usual an dgo around the walls and ceilings of each room with the end of the big tube or hose. The suction draws them in from a distance of two feet. Friend wife can catch the pesky things on the fly with her vacuum. This rids the house of the immediate offenders with ease and rapidity and affords sport for the boy. Then look after the breeding places.

Sun Baths.

Mrs. M. W. writes: Will you kindly tell us about the sun bath treatment?

How long should one apply the sun to the afflicted parts?

And how often?

REPLY.

You do not say what sun baths are to be used for.

In tuberculosis, the exposure on the first day lasts five minutes. The feet are first exposed. The exposures are given once a day. The length of the exposure and the amount of skin exposed are increased daily. There must be no soreness or burning as distinguished from tanning.

This is not the proper method of sunlight treatment of ulcers; nor of rickets.

See Health Officer.

Mrs. P. writes: I wish your advice about a family in this neighborhood. The father owns a farm and is not by any means poor. The mother is dirty and in poor health and the oldest boy is afflicted with tuberculosis; the girl next to him is not bright and has been in this condition since birth; the three smaller children are in ne health. No attempt to take care of this boy is made by the parents. At present he goes to public places and drinks and eats among others. Is there any way to stop this? He is about 19 years old.

REPLY.

In most States the law empowers the health department to make the parents correct the conditions you describe.

In some States juvenile courts act in such cases in order to protect the minor children.

FOOTBALL QUESTIONS

If You Have Some Question to Ask About Football Write—

LAWRENCE PERRY,

Special Football Correspondent of The Bee, 814 World Building, New York

(Copyright, 1924, by The Bee)

QUESTION—Please advise whether or not a player may be tackled if he has a forward pass in his hand to throw.

2. Also may a ball be held by a player when it is to be kicked off?

ANSWER—1. A forward passer certainly may be tackled before he throws the ball. Many players make the mistake of hesitating, dancing in front of him before he throws the ball. But they need not wait. One of the best methods of forward pass defense is getting through on the thrower.

2. The ball may be heldr by a player when it is to be kiked off, by virtue of a supplemental ruling issued by the Rules Committee.

QUESTION—Has it ever been known to you in the past for any football player to throw or kick a footbal from one goal post to the other?

ANSWER—The writer does not believe anyone ever threw a football a hundred yards. Personaly he never saw one kicked that far, nor heard of it being done.

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 13.—A silver cup and a prize of $250 are offered to the group of American undergraduate students who most effectively produce and act a one-act drama at Northwestern University on Jan. 1, 1925. The contest national in scope, is under the auspices of Northwestern University School of Speech, which Robert L. Cumnock founded in Evanston in 1878.

The decision of the judges will be based upon choice of play, direction and acting.

The play may be any one-act comedy or heavy drama that can be presented in a maximum of 40 minutes. While any play may be selected, no play may be given by two clubs or groups. The right to present any given play shall lie with the group making the first registration for that play. The casts wil lnot be limited in numbers.

EVERETT TRUE :-: By CONDO

One-Control Detector

HOOKUP OF ONE-CONTROL DETECTOR.

By ISRAEL KLEIN
NEA Service Radio Editor

Upon the low-loss coil depends much the success in construction of a simple detector.

The tapped inductance, the variocoupler or variometer has given way to the honey-comb primary and secondary, the basket weave, diamond weave, spiderweb or similar type of winding. For it has been definitely established that there is a minimum of loss in reception by means of such coils.

A simple detector circuit with such coils has only one control, that of the variable condenser. Once the primary and secondary low loss tuners are fixed, there is no longer need of tampering with them to tune in a station. The condenser does that.

A good type of coil for the set considered here is a simple spiderweb. Both the primary, A, and the secondary, B, are wound similarly around a two and a half inch inner circle. The best way to do this is to set an odd number of spikes, nine or eleven preferably, evenly around a thick wood hub, 2½ inches in diameter, and wind the wire in and out about these, going under two spikes, over the next two, under the next two and so on.

Condenser Important.

Coil A gets six windings of No. 16 DCC wire, while coil B is wound with about 48 turns of No. 18 wire. The exact number of winding depends on the condenser. Different condensers give varying results, therefore the best way to learn the exact number of turns needed is to experiment as follows:

Wind about 55 turns on the secondary, and when you are finished with the set and ready to listen in, decide on a definite station with a wavelength of, say, 360 meters. Turn the condenser dial until this station comes in strongly and note the reading.

If the reading is at 30 on the dial, the number of windings is correct. Otherwise, strip off one turn at a time until the dial reaches 30 for a 360-meter station. This will enable you to cover all broadcasting wavelengths.

The two coils, A and B, are set alongside each other, with the centers coinciding, about an inch apart. Two or three pieces of wood an inch long may be set between them for this purpose, and nails hammered into the ends through the coils, to keep them together.

Other Parts.

A piece of doweling about 3-8 inch thick can be used to hold the coils upright. Bore a 3-8 inch hole in the baseboard, where the coils are to go, put a dowel into one of the openings of the larger coil, leaving enough to be glued into the hole in the base.

The variable condenser should be of the best low-loss type available. A 23-plate type is called for. Of course it should be vernier-controlled.

The fixed condenser, C2, should be of .001 mfd. capacity, and the grid condenser, C3, should have a capacity of .00025 mfd., with a variable grid leak of from 1 to 2 merohms.

The phone jack, J, is of the open circuit type if no audio amplifier is to be added to the detector. But it should be of the closed circuit type if an amplifier is attached.

The tube, depending on the use of dry or wet batteries for filament current, may be either UV-199, UV-200 or any other detector of reputable make.

CHARTERED RUM RUNNER

(By The Associated Press)

CHRISTIANA, Norway, Oct. 13.—The owners of the Norwegian steamer Sagatind seized Sunday off New York, allegedly with a large amount of liquor on board, say the vessel was chartered by a British firm for six weeks. It was added that the owners were not aware whether the crew was made up of Norwegians or not. The owners say they have not heard from the vessel for some time and that they have wired the captain for information.

Shenandoah Awaits Passing of Storm

(By The Associated Press)

SANDIEGO, Calif., Oct. 14—The fourth morning of the navy dirigible Shenandoah's stay at North Island, swinging at her mooring mast, fully provisioned, fueled, gassed and repaired, but awaiting the passage of a storm blowing in the north Pacific before casting loose for Los Angeles, San Francisco and other points north

The decision not to depart this morning, as planned, was reached late last night after Rear Admiral Wm. Moffett chief of the naval bureau of aeronautics, and Lieut. Commander Zachary Lansdowne, commander of the great dirigible, agreed it would be useless to risk bucking the storm.

MORNING STOCK LETTER

Thomson & McKinnon

NEW YORK, Oct. 14. —For those of us who have taken the political situation too complacently the speech of our able Secretary of States at Indianapolis last night furnishes much food for thought. Don't fail to read it. A poll covering about thirty states and recording one half million votes taken by a leading New York Democratic daily, emphasizes the danger which is sounded by Mr. Hughes.

Other than the political outlook there is nothing to cause serious concern in the immediate future. The rehabilitation of Germany is underway. Plans for various mergers which will cut operating costs and promote efficiency are either contemplated or in the process of formation. All statistics point to a slight though perceptible improvement in basic industries. It rests with the voters of the country to say whether this improvement shall continue or the nation be plunged into unertainties from which it may take years to emerge.

Little can be expected of the market until this doubt is removed.

MORNING COTTON LETTER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Cables weak, fair and warmer weather prevailed over the holidays. A storm in the gulf is moving west Manchester optimistic on decline in cotton and reports considerable business. Worth street quiet. Sentiment is mostly bearish on good weather The size of the crop is still uncertain and trade demand should continue in increasing volume on price recessions. It would seem that no serious or permanent decline would occur.

GREAT DEMAND WAS MADE FOR GERMAN BONDS

Heavy Oversubscription of Loan Within 12 Minutes Indicated

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK Oct. 14.— Subscription books for America's $110,000 000 portion of the $200 000,00 German loan were opened at 1 o'clock this morning and closed twelve minutes later with an indicated heavy over subscription.

So great was the demand for German bonds that several large investment houses were compelled to decline to take any more subscriptions because their allotment of the loan had been sold.

In the first 15 minutes of trading approximately $35,000 worth of the bonds changed hands on the New York stock exchange at prices ranging between 94 3-8 and 92 7-8 as against the offering price of 92

Sale of America's share of the bonds composing the $200,000,000 German reconstruction loan began this morning at 10 o'clock. This country's allotment totals $110 000,000 The rest of the bonds will be marketed in Great Britain and other purchasing nations almost simultaneously with the offering in this country.

Prince to See Ford Assembled

(By The Associated Press)

DETROIT, Oct. 14.— Assembling of a complete automobile at the Highland Park plant of the Ford Motor company is one of the events planned for the Prince of Wales, who is scheduled to arrive at Highland Park, a suburb, shortly before noon today.

The automobile, which will be put together in an effort to break the present production of the plant, which is 11 minutes and 40 seconds.

Men dressed in white, working with nickel plated wrenches, chains and bars, will assemble the machine. None of the parts regularly used will be put into the car, all of the outside parts being enameled and all of the bolt heads and trim being nickel plated. An effort will be made to have the prince drive the machine from the assembly platform.

The program for the prince's visit to Detroit, at his request, has not been announced, further than that he will be the guest of Henry Ford during his stay here. He is expected to go from here to Toronto, Ontario.

Prince Delays His Trip to Dance With Three Score Women

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Oct. 14—After delaying his departure three hours, to dance with nearly all three score women at an exclusive dinner party at the Sadd'e and Cycle Club, the Prince of Wales left for Detroit on a special train at 3:30 a. m. today.

Smiling an affable but pride farewell after nearly twenty hours of constant activity, the heir to the British throne was driven directly from the club to the private car of Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Grand Trunk Railway, attached to the special, which had been held at the prince's request.

The prince's progress throughout the city was hailed with outburts of enthusiasm that several times threatened to overwhelm him and his hosts. One surging crowds at the field museum brushed aside police lines and prince's party was pushed and jostled. In the melee the prince himself picked up a small boy and saved him from being trampled.
